ENTIRE NAZI BATTALION SURRENDERS

Allied, German Airmen Battle In Norway Sky

Norwegians Whip Invaders At Narvik—Expeditionary Forces Locked In Conflict Along Trondheim Coast

British United Press. Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin.

STOCKHOLM, April 24.—An entire German battalion in the Narvik region has surrendered to the Norwegians, it was said today in reliable quarters.

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
British United Press Foreign News Editor

GERMAN and Allied air fleets fought with increasing power in Scandinavia today in an effort to turn the tide of two major battles for domination of Norway. In the rugged hills of the south and along the jagged coast line around Trondheim, the expeditionary forces of the belligerent powers were locked in conflicts still obscured by censorship and crippled communication lines. But there were many signs that air power would play a vital role in the final outcome of fighting.

One telephonic message from Roeros said that British reinforcements were moving into the central Norwegian front near Lillehammer in an effort to break up a German advance northward from the Oslo region.

The blows of the central front were so scattered and reports from military sources were so limited that there was little to indicate the actual trend of battle.

On the west coast of Norway, operations in the Trondheim sector also were obscure but the Germans reported that they had captured the narrows off the port of Steinkjer, north of Trondheim. This move was calculated to strike the Allied forces advancing south from Namsos toward Trondheim and a big-scale battle was believed in progress.

SHOVING SOUTHWARD

The Germans at Trondheim also were reported shoving southward along the Guadalen valley toward Roeros.

But the outcome of these land operations appeared to depend on the results of a tremendous battle being fought in the air and—more specifically—on the ability of the Allied forces to establish air bases rapidly in Norway.

The prime objective of the Nazis is to break the allied backbone by destruction of British naval power and Berlin claims that progress has been made in that direction.

These claims are denied at London and are regarded by neutrals as exaggerated but, in any event, the power of Marshal Hermann Goering's great air armada is now being tested and the newly-built British aerial force is facing its most difficult task.

The British bombing fleets can make the round trip from England to Norway, Denmark and Germany and unload their high explosives. They did it again last night, carrying out one of the most extensive raids of the war and bombing Germany's powerful air field on Sylt island as well as other bases at Aalborg, Oslo and Stavanger.

PREVENTIVE MEASURES

But these bombings are preventive measures, designed to break up the German bases and thus handicap the German bombers instead of fighting them off when they leave their landing parties and British troops in Norway or unload many tons of explosives on ports—such as Namsos and Andalsnes—which the Allies must use to get reinforcements and supplies to their expeditionary forces.

The German air fleet has pounded at the landing bases used by the Allies and at railroad communications centres which they must use in central Norway.

The only real defence against such bombardment is air superiority and the Allies need air bases in Norway to meet the German air fleet on even terms. The little British fighting planes are superior to the famed German Messerschmidt pursuit craft, but their short flying range does not permit operation over a long distance and if they are to fight in Scandinavia they must have some place to land.

In northern Norway, there still was no definite word from the iron-ore port of Narvik, where the Allied Forces have besieged about 2,500 Germans.

The position of Sweden continued critical, with persistent reports circulating in Paris official circles that a German invasion of that country was to be expected.

Bigger Fleet

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Chairman Key Pittman (Dem.-Nevada) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, registering his support for a bigger navy, declared today it was imperative that the United States build a fleet capable of defending the Western Hemisphere alone, if necessary.

GERMANS ARE BEATEN OFF AT TRONDHEIM

LONDON, April 24.—The war office announced today that British troops in the Trondheim area of Norway had beaten off a strong German counter-attack "after some sharp fighting" yesterday and had re-established their positions.

The communique follows:
"In the Trondheim area a counter-attack which was referred to in yesterday's communique was delivered by a considerable number of German troops landed from ships in the Trondheim fjord.
"After some sharp fighting our troops succeeded in re-establishing the situation.
"There is nothing further to report about the operations elsewhere."

FLOOD WATERS RECEDING BUT STILL THREAT

Whitecourt Farm Lands Covered With 10-Foot Deposit Of Ice

While flood waters in most areas of Alberta are receding, new rain and snow in the north and central section still creates a hazard, adding to the run-off from the land and swelling the smaller creeks.

In the Whitecourt district, 135 miles northwest of Edmonton, the Athabasca river has receded after leaving 40 people in the lowland farming area homeless, but has left a field of ice 10 feet deep over the whole district. It will probably be the end of July before is the last of this mass.

At Edson, Vegreville, and other points the floods are receding slightly. At Morrin, near Drumheller, floods washed out a portion of the railway grade and at Three Hills several small bridges have been washed out.

MORRIN, April 24—Washed out track nearly caused a train wreck early this week when a north-bound

LIBERALS TO CONFER HERE ON THURSDAY

Membership To Decide Stand Regarding New Independent Party

Edmonton Liberal Association meeting being held Thursday evening, April 25, at 8 o'clock, in the I.O.O.F. Hall, 103 street, will be for Liberal membership only and is not a public meeting, according to statements made by officers of the association Wednesday.

The purpose of the meeting is to approve and make clear that the Edmonton Liberal Association will not join in the efforts being made to form a new political party in Alberta as outlined in the letter sent to Alderman Hugh John Macdonald, K.C., M.L.A., Edmonton, and J. J. Bowlen, M.L.A. of Calgary by the officers of the Edmonton Liberal Association.

The letter read as follows:

Hugh John Macdonald, Esq., M.L.A.
411 McLeod Building,
Edmonton, Alberta.

Dear Mr. Macdonald:

I am instructed to advise you that a meeting of the officers of the Edmonton Liberal Association was called on Friday evening, the 19th instant, and attention was drawn to the news report that there appears to be on foot an effort to form a new party in the Province of Alberta.

As the meeting of the Opposition Members is called for today it was obviously impossible to hold a full meeting of the Association in order to ascertain its opinion, but the officers of the Association felt that some expression of their opinion, (which they believe is consistent with the opinion of the rank and file of the party at Edmonton at least), and which is that in view of the circumstances under which the Unity Organization was formed and in view of the proclamation that it was not intended to be a political party, but as an association formed simply for the purpose of bringing together the old line parties for the purpose of the election just upon the strength of which the Edmonton Liberal Association agreed to cooperate with them, the Liberal members who were elected ought not to be privy to the formation of any new party intended to replace either the Liberal or the Conservative parties, both of which parties have had a long and honorable history in the political economics of Canada.

Yours truly,
CHAS. D. GRANT, Secretary,
Edmonton Liberal Association.

OUTLINES STAND

Outlining the stand taken by Edmonton Liberals, Edward C. Phillips, defeated Liberal candidate on the Edmonton Citizen's slate, and past president of the Edmonton Liberal Association, said:

"According to public pledges made before and during the recent provincial general election campaign, the organizers and officials of the Unity Council stated very definitely that it was their intention to form a new political party but that the Unity Council efforts were to join the Liberals and Conservatives in a co-operative movement to defeat the Aberhart government.

"Any suggestion that the Liberal party in Alberta was to disband and join a new political party organization after the election would have killed any idea of co-operation so generously given by the Liberals of Alberta."

Others point out that 10 candidates with reported Conservative affiliations running under co-operation, were elected. Some with Liberal affiliations numbered 7, and former U. F. A. candidates 2, making up the total of 19 elected on the Citizen's slates in Edmonton and Calgary and those standing as Independents in the rural constituencies.

TRAGIC BLUNDER

Many Liberals are said to feel it was a tragic blunder for Liberals to join with the Conservatives under the Unity Council auspices as the election figures show that the Liberal party, if they had maintained their party integrity would have at least elected more than 19 members, and might have even defeated the Aberhart government.

As one Liberal put it, thousands of Liberals voted for Social Credit provincial candidates as they had no confidence in the Unity Council. This he contended, is shown by the voting figures in the Drumheller election, when all candidates ran under their party labels. These figures were as follows:

Liberals	100,353
Social Credit	91,371
C. C. F.	52,686
Conservatives	29,783
All others	4,076

Why the Liberals with the greatest voting strength in the province should abandon the provincial field, is bewildering to most political observers interviewed. They point out every province in Canada has a Liberal government except Alberta, while the Dominion government is Liberal with the greatest majority in history.

Scenes From Whitecourt Flood Area

Farming lowlands of the Athabasca river east of Whitecourt are covered by a layer of ice 10 feet deep, in some places piled as high as 30 feet by floods which swept over the valley last Saturday, when 40 persons were rescued after thrilling battles with the deluge. Lower picture shows the vast field of ice which sheared away trees and buildings in its course, while in the upper picture B. Hart is shown standing by his house. With N. Lyons and D. Wartman he sat on this roof for six hours. They expected each moment to be their last as they watched five cows and four horses sweep away.

Royal Air Force Raids On 5 German Bases Declared Successful

LONDON, April 24.—Royal Air Force raids on five German air bases in Germany and Scandinavia today featured an intensification of the British war effort against Germany on many fronts. The day brought these developments:

1—The air ministry announced "highly successful" raids on German bases at the Island of Sylt, Germany, Aalborg, Denmark, and Kristiansand, Oslo and Stavanger, Norway.

2—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons that the ministry of information would resume control of censorship. However, he did not make an expected statement on the war.

3—The government announced that 2,000,000 men exclusive of the Royal Navy and Marines, Merchant Marine and the Royal Air Force, are under arms and that the British armies in France and the Middle East are steadily being augmented.

NEUTRALS WILL JOIN

4—Arthur Greenwood, deputy leader of the Parliamentary Labor Party, predicted that before the war is over "many neutrals will be in it to the fight."

5—Richard Butler, under-secretary for foreign affairs, told the House that Britain has invited Russia to put forward concrete proposals for a trade agreement.

6—The war office reported British troops had beaten off a strong German counter-attack in the Trondheim area and had re-established the situation in that sector on the western Norwegian coast. There was nothing to report else-where in Norway, the war office added.

The aerial thrust against the Westernland airdrome on the German island of Sylt lasted an hour and 40 minutes during which the German seaplane base was bombed almost continuously.

About 20 enemy aircraft were heavily bombed at Stavanger and a number were believed destroyed or badly damaged while the raiders concentrated on airdromes and runways at Kristiansand, where one

SWOLLEN WATER OF ATHABASCA STOPS CAGE USE

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

ATHABASCA, April 24—Swollen waters of the Athabasca river here for the first time make use of the cable cage impossible. In other years the cage has had to stop running while the ice was running, but this is the first year it has been out of operation since the river has cleared of ice.

Tuesday afternoon the cage was used by school children and others from town to the north side. The cage hung so low over the centre that it was immersed in more than three feet of water. The occupants of the cage had to scramble up the sides and hang on while the operator cranked the engine into pulling the apparatus through the water to safety on the other side.

One high school boy, Elwood Stinsman, lost his big overshoes when current pulled them off, and they floated away down river.

This morning crossings were made in a rowboat with four good men on the oars. For each crossing they have to go about a quarter of a mile upstream before starting.

Envoy Goes Back

ROME, April 24—German ambassador Hans-Georg Viktor Von Mackensen returned to Rome today from Berlin, where he was recalled last week for consultation with his government. Von Mackensen's trip Rome raised reports that Premier Mussolini would visit Berlin early next month. The reports were described yesterday by authoritative Fascist quarters as "fantastic."

New Evidence Of Suspected German Coup

Nazi Troops Massing At Ports Directly Opposite Southern Sweden—Fresh Force Embarks From Baltic Points

By AXEL DE HOLSTEIN
Havas Staff Writer

PARIS, April 24.—Confirmed reports that a fresh Nazi expeditionary force has embarked from German Baltic ports aboard a transport fleet escorted by ice-breakers were cited by military quarters today as offering further evidence of a suspected German coup against Sweden.

News of the significant troop movements along the Baltic coast followed efforts of embarkation and debarkation exercises being carried out by the Germans at Stralsund and the Danish island of Bornholm, immediately opposite Sweden.

French military quarters discounted reports that the fresh German troops might merely be designed to reinforce the Nazi expeditionary force in southern Norway. The Baltic concentration points, it was pointed out, are to the east of the Kattegat route followed by the Nazis when staging their lightning stroke at Norway.

CRUMBLING ICE FLOES

The convoy of ice-breakers escorting the new transport convoy also was linked with the crumbling ice floes still clogging the southern reaches of the Baltic sea. Further evidence of an expected coup was read into the Nazi army's evidently determined bid to control the Norwegian-Swedish border.

The Germans were said to be massing at ports directly opposite southern Sweden and well to the east of the Danish straits through which transports for Norway would pass.

The presence of icebreakers also was taken to indicate the fleet was destined to operate farther north in the Baltic where the waters still are cluttered with ice floes left later than usual by the long winter.

French military sources have expressed belief that the Germans may go into Sweden under their Norwegian campaign. The Allied supreme war council yesterday drafted plans to counteract any such action and the French cabinet met today to review the situation anew.

CANUCKS NOT FIGHTING ON NORWAY SOIL

Official Announcement Is Made Denying Reports On Canada Units

By EDWIN JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 24.—The folks back home who have patiently but anxiously awaited word about Canadian troops reported fighting with the Allied forces in Norway were told officially today that members of the Canadian Active Service force are not in that country and never have been.

Seven days after the report was first circulated that Canadians formed part of the Norway-bound British expeditionary force the aura of mystery and reticence was lifted this morning with release of the following official announcement:

REPORTS INCORRECT

"Reports have appeared in the press that Canadian units are fighting in Norway. It is authoritatively stated in London that these reports are incorrect although there may be individual Canadians serving in the R.F. in Norway."

This terse statement effectively smothered conflicting accounts and rumors which have daily been bruited about in the absence of official confirmation or denial. Only 36 hours ago, one report told of the landings of a large body of Canadian infantry, including specialists and a detachment of a famous regiment, at various points of the Norwegian coast.

Again yesterday dispatches from Swedish sources described how expert Canadian ski troops had been in action with the Imperial troops near Lillehammer.

Although official spokesmen declined to amplify the brief statement which leaked out of a large body of Canadian troops the landing reports had not been denied earlier

Government Is Making Study Of Greenland

LONDON, April 24.—The position of Greenland as affected by the occupation of Denmark "at present is receiving consideration by His Majesty's governments in the United Kingdom and in Canada," Richard Butler, under-secretary for foreign affairs, told Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, in the House of Commons today.

The reply was given in response to Mr. Mander's question as to whether the Prime Minister had any statement in reference to the future of Greenland in connection with the recent pronouncement of the British ambassador to the United States (the Marquess of Lothian) on the subject."

France Plans To Double Strength Of Fleet By 1944

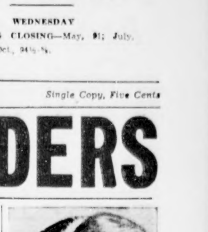

PARIS, April 24—Navy Minister Cesar Campinchi today announced a naval building program designed to double the strength of the French fleet by 1944.

Speaking to the finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies, Campinchi revealed the cost of the program as 13,000,000,000 francs ($264,370,000).

The minister said that in 1944 the fleet would be as strong as it is now even if every warship now in service were in the meantime destroyed.

LONDON, April 24.—Captain Harold Balfour, under-secretary for air, announced in the House of Commons today that British transatlantic air service has been abandoned because the planes are needed for defence purposes.

DOMINION NOT TO DISALLOW ALBERTA ACTS

Disallowance Time Limit Expires Tuesday For Mortgage Acts

OTTAWA, April 24.—Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, said last night, following a cabinet council, that two Alberta legislature acts dealing with mortgages, would not be interfered with.

Time limit for disallowing the legislation expired yesterday. There had been submissions from interested parties urging disallowance, but the necessary action was taken at Tuesday's meeting to confirm the amendments concerned.

Most important of the acts is an amendment to the judicature act which has the effect of denying a mortgagee the right to take action on the covenant of a mortgage contract.

This means that while the mortgagee can foreclose if his debtor is in default he cannot go to the courts to collect on the covenant of the mortgage in which the debtor takes personal responsibility to ensure that the amount of the loan is paid in full.

A kindred amendment to the Land Titles Act nullifies the "atornment" clause in mortgages. This clause applies particularly to farm mortgages, and provides that if a debtor does not meet his interest payments the mortgagee may proceed by distress action to seize crops or similar assets.

The British North America Act provides that all provincial legislation must be submitted to the Governor-General-in-Council for approval or disallowance. Action must be taken by the Governor-General within one year.

In the case of acts passed by the Alberta legislature since the Social Credit administration of Premier Aberhart took office five years ago Mr. Lapointe acted with the Governor-General-in-Council.

Chooses Title

LONDON, April 24.—Major G. C. Tryon, Secretary of the Duchy of Lancaster, who recently was elevated to the peerage, has chosen the title of Baron Tryon of Dirnford.

Russia Said Backing Sweden Against Nazis

LONDON, April 24—The Havas News Agency said today that usually well-informed sources said the Soviet ambassador here has advised the British government that Russia is backing Sweden in its resistance to German pressure and would regard extension of the war's influence in Scandinavia as contrary to Moscow's interests.

This statement, according to the sources quoted by Havas, was made yesterday by the Soviet envoy, Ivan Maisky, in a talk with Richard A. Butler, under-secretary for foreign affairs, at the foreign office.

The foreign office itself refused to confirm or deny this report but official admitted that Maisky's call yesterday was not connected with negotiations towards the proposed Anglo-Russian trade agreement.

BRITISH FILM AIDES COMING TO EDMONTON

OTTAWA, April 24—Michael Powell of London, British producer, director and author, said last night the biggest and most ambitious British motion picture to be produced in the world will be filmed in Canada this summer.

Powell will produce and direct the film which will be from a story now being written by Emeric Pressburger, who wrote the screen play for "I Met A Soldier."

Powell and Pressburger and other members of the advance guard of the production, including Dolland Gillett, associate producer, Alfred Seabourne, film editor, and Frederick Paton, cameraman, assistant to Powell, are conferring with government officials.

They plan to leave Ottawa tomorrow and go to Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria.

Tories To Choose House Leader In Ottawa On May 13

OTTAWA, April 24.—Dr. R. J. Manion, Conservative leader, announced today a caucus of duly elected Conservative members of the House of Commons has been called for May 13 "to choose a temporary house leader and to prepare for the session of parliament."

At present Dr. Manion is without a seat in the Commons, having been defeated in his home constituency of Fort William.

Shock Troops Are Locked In Death Battle

Bitter Fighting Reported On Three Fronts—Conflicting Reports Cloud Outcome Of Naval Battle

STOCKHOLM, April 24.—Outbreaks of guerrilla fighting around Oslo were reported today to be handicapping the German invaders of Norway behind the lines while Nazi shock troops were locked in a death struggle with British, French and Norwegian regulars on three major fronts.

Swedish newspaper correspondents said the rattle of machine-gun fire had been heard frequently in Oslo suburbs in the last few days as Norwegian irregulars, defying an edict providing the death penalty for possession of weapons, harassed the Germans with hit-and-run tactics.

The principal topic of conversation in Sweden, meanwhile was furnished by mounting evidence that a naval engagement—possibly of major proportions—had been fought yesterday in the Skagerrak.

CONFLICTING REPORTS

The outcome of the action was clouded by conflicting reports, but Swedish observers speculated that the British fleet had made a determined effort to close the sea route to Narvik, where Germans have been getting reinforcements into Norway.

Determined to avoid involvement in the war raging at their doorstep, Sweden continued to take active steps to prevent infringement of her neutral status. Five German mine sweepers, reported active in Swedish waters in the Skagerrak, were promptly asked to leave—and complied immediately.

BITTER FIGHTING

While Allied land forces were reported continuing their attempts to push off the German-occupied ports of Trondheim and Narvik, on Norway's west coast, the bitterest fighting appeared today to be raging in the vicinity of Lillehammer and Rena, some 80 miles north of Oslo.

The two towns are strategically important because they are situated at the southern entrances to the parallel Gudbrandsdal and Osterdal valleys, gateways for attack on Oslo from the north.

Lillehammer also is an important base because it is on the railway running northwest to the British debarkation port of Andalsnes, while Rena, 20 miles north, is on the line connecting with Trondheim.

The Norwegians, reinforced by British troops, were reported to be putting up stiff resistance at both points.

GOOD ADVANCE

Dispatches to the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter said the Germans were advancing slowly at Rena but only after the bloodiest fighting.

A bitter battle was said to have been raging since the fall of Rena where the Nazis attacked twice without success before finally gaining their objective—possession of a bridge over Lake Osa.

Both the Norwegians and the Germans have reported the landing of extensive use of ski troops in the fighting around Rena. The Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet said one contingent detachment of 400 men, executing a swift flanking movement, had attacked the Norwegians from the rear, only to be virtually annihilated by machine gun fire.

ADVANCE STALLED

British forces, previously reported digging in from the north and south on the German-held port of Trondheim, key to central Norway's quarterly were stalled for the time being at least after a series of advance guard skirmishes.

Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, and Clement Attlee, dominions secretary, were among parties had been compelled to retire from Steinkjer, 90 miles north of Trondheim, and disappointed by the same distance south of their debarkation point at Namsos.

Other British forces were reported holding positions at Storen, 25 miles below Trondheim.

Official British sources said last night that a "sharp encounter" had been fought north of Trondheim and that "operations are proceeding in cooperation with the Norwegian forces."

A communique issued last night by Norwegian military headquarters said the German attempts to force an entrance to the Gudbrandsdal, southern Osterdal valleys were supported by artillery, tanks and aircraft.

The Norwegians insisted that they held command of the railway from Aldalsnos to Lillehammer, a distance of 50 miles, and that the Germans were reported in control of the area surrounding Lake Mjosen, including Hamar, the town of Minor and Gjovik, approximately 60 miles from Oslo, and Raufoss, important as the site of an ammunition factory.

West of Lake Mjosen, the Norwegian communique said, the Germans were beaten back with the loss of 100 prisoners in an attempt to advance up the Valders River valley.

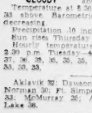

Later Closing Hour For Coast Cabarets Favored By Council

VANCOUVER, April 24—Vancouver's oft-discussed night club hours popped back into the limelight last night with a council recommendation cabaret closing hours be extended 1 a.m. Sunday to 3 a.m. Subsequent ministerial association statement of "strongest disapproval."

Meeting in finance committee aldermen voted 5-4 to extend the Saturday night closing hour from midnight to 1 a.m.

When he learned of the action, Rev. Elbert Paul, president of the General Ministerial Association told Alderman Halford Wilson, who voted for the bylaw amendment, he had "sold" women short. "I am incanvas against you; I will see you never sit on the council again."

DETAIL SHOWN FOR AIR FORCE SCHOOL IN CITY

Construction Of Many Types Of Buildings Will Start Soon

OTTAWA, April 24—As the ground softens and spring weather advances the construction program for the British Commonwealth air training plan of hangars and buildings of many types will spring up across Canada.

During the winter scores of draughtsmen have been busy preparing plans for the buildings which will house the 50-odd schools over which pilots, air gunners and air observers to the number of many thousands will go out to take their places in the fighting air forces of the Empire.

Tenders for some of the buildings already have been called and the variety of construction involved is indicated by the plan for the air observers' school at Edmonton. This school will require two hangars, one 160 by 224 feet, and the other half the size, to accommodate the aircraft which will be used.

A ground instructional school will be built in the shape of the letter "H". One leg will be 225 by 30 feet, the second 156 by 30, and the cross section 18 by 50. Other buildings will include a technical and quartermaster's stores, an officers' mess for eight, officers' quarters for eight, non-commissioned officers' mess and quarters for nine, a mess for 150 airmen, quarters for 136 airmen, a 15-bed sick quarters, a nine-vehicle garage, a combined post office and guard house, a workshop, a wireless telegraph station, a direction finding receiving station, a photographic building in which aerial photographs will be developed and printed.

Contracts already have been let for a similar set of buildings for the Air Observers' school at Malton, Ont., near Toronto, and the other at Toronto, Ont. In all the plan calls for 10 such schools. Five will be at Prince Albert, Sask., will be the sites of two others and the sites of the other five have yet to be announced.

BRITISH BOMB SYLT ISLAND IN NIGHT RAID

Patrol Vessels Sunk, Other German Bases Are Attacked

LONDON, April 24—British war planes bombed the German North Sea seaplane base on the island of Sylt and sank two German patrol vessels in that region in a series of raids last night, the air ministry announced today.

The Royal Air Force also attacked German bases at Aalborg, Denmark, and Kristiansand, Oslo and Stavanger, Norway, it was said. "Offensive reconnaissance was reported carried out over Trondheim fjord.

The ministry's communique followed:

SERIES OF RAIDS

"The air ministry announces a further series of offensive operations was carried out by R.A.F. bomber aircraft last night against air bases available to the enemy for use in the invasion of Norway.

"Westerland airdrome on the island of Sylt was heavily and successfully attacked. Bombs were dropped on hangars and runways. Several fires were started and a large explosion occurred.

"North of Sylt a number of enemy patrol vessels were encountered. These vessels were given anti-aircraft fire on our planes. They were immediately attacked and two were sunk.

"Attacks were made also on enemy air bases at Aalborg, Kristiansand, Oslo and Stavanger and effective reconnaissance was carried out over Trondheim fjord.

"Detailed accounts have not yet been received but preliminary reports indicate that these operations were also highly successful."

for reasons of security. Any reference to troop movements and disposition during hazardous operations, it was said, might have considered helpful intelligence to the enemy and endangered the success of the undertaking.

NOT WITH C.A.S.F.

The persistency of reports that the Canadians had been landed and gone into action was believed due to the presence in Norway of a few men of the Canadian naval service, in no way connected with the Canadian Active Service Force. These are said to have been volunteered and attached to the Allied expeditionary force mustered to assist the Finns in their war with Soviet Russia.

It is understood that the original plans provided for inclusion of a detachment of Canadians with the British force dispatched to Norway. Their departure was said to have been countermanded at the last minute as a result of resounding successes scored by the advance guard which landed at several points on the Norwegian coast Wednesday week, which now is reported to be sufficiently strong to deal with the enemy invaders.

Last night Canadian troops of the first division were in their billets at Aldershot after an eventful day at sea. Hailing from the north and south on the German-held port of Trondheim, key to central Norway's quarterly were stalled for the time being at least after a series of advance guard skirmishes.

Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, and Clement Attlee, dominions secretary, were among parties had been compelled to retire from Steinkjer, 90 miles north of Trondheim, and disappointed by the same distance south of their debarkation point at Namsos.

Other British forces were reported holding positions at Storen, 25 miles below Trondheim.

Official British sources said last night that a "sharp encounter" had been fought north of Trondheim and that "operations are proceeding in cooperation with the Norwegian forces."

A communique issued last night by Norwegian military headquarters said the German attempts to force an entrance to the Gudbrandsdal, southern Osterdal valleys were supported by artillery, tanks and aircraft.

The Norwegians insisted that they held command of the railway from Aldalsnos to Lillehammer, a distance of 50 miles, and that the Germans were reported in control of the area surrounding Lake Mjosen, including Hamar, the town of Minor and Gjovik, approximately 60 miles from Oslo, and Raufoss, important as the site of an ammunition factory.

West of Lake Mjosen, the Norwegian communique said, the Germans were beaten back with the loss of 100 prisoners in an attempt to advance up the Valders River valley.

Two Vessels Sunk In English Channel

SENATOR BENNETT CLARK

of the United States Senate, who demanded a court martial for Rear Admiral Joseph N. Taussig, U.S.N., for his statement that war with Japan was "inevitable."

COURT MARTIAL DEMANDED FOR REAR ADMIRAL

British United Press

WASHINGTON, April 24—U.S. Senator Bennett C. Clark demanded today that Rear Admiral Joseph K. Taussig of the United States navy be court martialed for telling the senate naval affairs committee that war between the United States and Japan is inevitable.

Clark said Taussig's statement is the type of militaristic sword-swinging that has brought Japan itself into its present deplorable predicament. He said the Japanese allow naval officers to dictate domestic policies is precisely what is responsible for all the trouble in the Far East."

British United Press

TOKYO, April 24 — Japanese foreign office spokesman Takaichiro Amau declared today that he regarded U.S. Rear Admiral Joseph E. Taussig's statement that war between the United States and Japan was "inevitable," as a "seasonal patriotic outburst for the purpose of building up the navy."

Declining direct comment on Admiral Taussig's statement before the senate naval affairs committee, Suma said that his experience as a counsellor for the Japanese embassy in Washington "acquainted him with the seasonal patriotic outbursts by naval chiefs."

Suma said—quote—"We must exercise patience."

Kokumin, the only newspaper to comment on the U.S. admiral's statement, said:

"The United States has been preaching shallow humanism and outdated international principles, attempting to force them upon Japan."

SALESMAN IS CLIPPED BUT DOESN'T MIND

BERNE, Ind., April 24—Fred Von Gunten, salesman, concluded an agreement with a local business man—but he didn't at all the time that he was going to get clipped in the deal. He sold a typewriter to a local barber, and agreed to take payment for the machine in haircuts.

203 DEAD IN NEGRO DANCE HALL BLAZE

British United Press

NATCHEZ, Miss., April 24—Authorities counted 203 known dead today in a fire that swept through the Rhythm Club, a negro dance hall here last night and said that some of the 40 who were seriously injured probably will die, bringing the total dead to almost 250.

Coroner B. E. Smith said that many of the negro patrons of the dance hall, which at one time had been a negro church, came from Louisiana and it would be days before they could be identified.

The fire lasted only 15 minutes in which time the flimsy, shack-like building was reduced to ashes. Most of the victims, apparently, were killed not by the fire but in a mad stampede for the one exit.

All the bodies taken from the ashes were badly burned, some beyond possibility of identification. A majority of the victims were about 15 or 16 years old.

CHICAGO, April 24 — Walter Barnes' orchestra, which was believed to have been killed in the fire that destroyed the Natchez Rhythm Club, was regarded as one of the best negro swing bands in the United States.

Katherine Cornell Presents $1,500 To Canada Red Cross

TORONTO, April 24—The Canadian Red Cross was the richer last night by $1,500, thanks to Katharine Cornell and her company who are presenting "No Time For Comedy" in a Canadian tour.

Miss Cornell presented a cheque, representing a minimum donation from the cast for each of the 12 weeks' appearances, to Norman Sommerville, K.C., National Red Cross chairman.

British Officer With One Eye, One Arm, Wins Norwegians' Admiration

LONDON, April 24 — Reports reaching here last night from Norway said that a one-eyed, one-armed British officer has won the admiration of residents of the Sheilefjer region, where heavy fighting is said to be in progress, for his cool daring.

(Although the officer was not identified he was believed to be Major-General Adrian Carton De Wiart, veteran British officer, of Belgian descent, who has been reported in command of British forces in central Norway.)

One report said that General De Wiart coolly walked out of a hut in which he was quartered during a heavy bombardment. Bombs were exploding on all sides but the officer, who set out to obtain shelter late for some Norwegian civilians who had taken shelter near his headquarters, came unhead and returned uninjured with the bars, while the bombs continued to rain down.

General Carton De Wiart lost an eye and a hand in the first Great War. He won the Victoria Cross at La Boisselle on the Somme in 1916 when he obtained action from falling enemy by walking deliberately toward enemy trenches in the midst of a fierce German attack.

SIMON URGES UTMOST CARE IN SPENDING

"Think Before You Spend" Taxpayers Advised By Chancellor

LONDON, April 24—Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, last night advised British taxpayers to "think before you spend."

Making suggestions for limitation of non-essential spending in order to help finance the war, he said, during a broadcast to those he termed his "victims";

"The various cases have been spread over the whole of production as fairly and justly as can be contrived, but as I would do my duty thoroughly and fearlessly, I am sure the people of this country will do theirs by cheerfully and whatever sacrifice to the revenue of the country.

FIGHTERS CAME FIRST

"We are engaged in the most expensive war in all time. The immense outlay of £5,500,000 (about $24,475,000) daily makes it necessary to restrict our spending. The needs of our fighting services must come first, the needs of our export trade second, for the exports pay for the war, and our home needs must be reduced as far as they can."

He urged Britons, hesitating as to whether they should or should not make a purchase, to make it "unless you feel pretty sure they ought to have it.

"Care should be taken to consider whether the article has come from overseas, for it is a drain on our shipping and we should show gratitude to the merchant seamen who are facing severe dangers by resisting the temptation to buy things from overseas."

READY FOR CRITICISM

He also urged that the taxpayers decide on what much income can be put aside each week.

Nothing is more certain than that a budget making such tremendous claims on the taxpayers will be criticized from many quarters, he said.

"I am quite prepared for that," he added. "It would be a pity, though, if the wish to criticize should spoil our unity—the one thing that matters most is that we should help finance the country not only by paying these heavy taxes but by increasing the flow of our utmost our power of savings which are so necessary a part of the country's determined effort to win the war."

FLOOD WATERS RECEDING BUT STILL THREAT

freight had difficulty in crossing a 10 to 14 foot washout about a quarter of a mile north of Morrin. A large gap in the track was filled in under the track taking the road bed with it and leaving only the ties and rails to span the gap in the stream of water. It is feared that other pieces of track between Morrin and Drumheller may be washed out also and the section crew is busy inspecting the track.

Travelling by car has been abandoned. The corner road west of the Morrin cemetery is under water. The road east to the Red Deer bridge was washed out and covered with water in several places. Rains since Saturday have made the west road impassable.

VEGREVILLE, April 24—Easing the situation at the Genesee Hospital, flood waters of the Vermilion river receded slightly Tuesday afternoon. It is generally believed that the peak of the flood has been reached. Rising steadily through Monday night, the waters would have isolated the hospital started to cross the approach of the bridge connecting the hospital grounds with the rest of the town but by building up the approach it was stopped before any damage was done. Light snow and rain fell as the river was falling Tuesday night. With the river receding as high as it is, any appreciable fall of snow would be likely to cause more serious flooding.

THREE HILLS, April 21—Even if its weather turns warm and fine, it will be at least another 10 days before farmers can get on the land in this district, as all the low land is under water and the creeks are up over their banks in a number of spots. Several small bridges have been washed out and there is water on the road. The rural routes for the mail men have been impassable for nearly three days.

The bus which ran regularly every day on this highway has not been on the two east and will probably be another week before it is back on schedule.

Nazi Commission Reaches Stockholm For Conferences

STOCKHOLM, April 24—A German government commission arrived here today to confer with the Swedish government on the subject of a German-Swedish commercial agreement."

No hint was given in official circles here as to whether the Germans also intended to take up political questions with Swedish authorities.

Neutral observers attached exceptional importance to the arrival of the German mission because of the hostilities now under way in Norway and increasing threats that they might engulf Sweden.

Saga of Northern Seas Disclosed in Admiralty's Account of Narvik Fight

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ALLUSEN, April 24.—A saga of the northern seas featuring individual heroism and the naval traditions of Nelson and Drake was disclosed by the British admiralty yesterday when the first detailed account of the destroyer attack on Narvik April 10 was published.

Against superior German forces, five British destroyers stormed through mist and snow into the narrow fjord leading to the Norwegian ore port and sank six German supply ships, torpedoed a German destroyer and left three others burning furiously in the cold frosty dawn.

COMMANDER KILLED

H.M.S. Hardy, leader of the destroyer flotilla led the attack again and again before she was wrecked by the German firing at point blank range when her commander, Captain B. A. W. Warburton-Lee, and every man on the bridge except one was dead or unconscious.

The surviving officer, Paymaster Lieut. G. H. Stanning, wounded in the left foot, took over the wheel of the shambles of the bridge, steering the ship until it was beached to save the lives of the remainder of the crew.

The admiralty account of the battle of Narvik was given the world 22 years to the day after the navy stormed the Belgian mole against submarine base of the first Great War, and sealed up the harbor with cement-filled blockships and assaulted the mile-long mole.

HARDY OFFICERS' REPORT

The report was based, on "preliminary reports from surviving officers" of the Hardy. This is the story:

The Hardy entered Narvik harbor alone in a heavy snowstorm, engaging two larger German destroyers and sinking one in the first blast. The Hardy next was hotly engaged by two German ships of superior gunpower and by guns mounted ashore. She fired her torpedoes, which made havoc among German supply ships and transports. Then she withdrew.

The Hardy led a third attack, this time encountering three German destroyers steaming towards her from Rombaks fjord. The Hardy turned down the fjord two more German destroyers were sighted ahead. Gunfire burst on all sides and the Hardy's bridge was wrecked.

Only one man on the Hardy bridge was unwounded or rendered unable to seaman and went back to the bridge, taking charge of the ship. Afterward, he reported: A large gap in the bridge, a vague memory of ramming an enemy vessel and firing at it almost point blank range, a shell hit the Hardy's engine room.

He reported that he beached the ship to save the crew. The Hardy grounded she already was practically motionless, with only one gun still in action and under heavy fire at close range.

Meantime the British destroyer Hunter was sunk and the Hotspur and the Hostile were damaged. Only the Havoc was unscathed. But the Germans lost six supply ships, one destroyer was torpedoed by the Hardy and three other destroyers were damaged and left on fire.

Captain Warburton-Lee, who commanded the destroyer flotilla, was lashed to a stretcher to be taken ashore, but he did not live to reach it.

The survivors took shelter in houses ashore. 80 huddling in one house where the wife and baby daughter distributed food and all available clothing.

The officers said the men were "very courageous". One able seaman, named Bailey, was half frozen and had one hand shot off, but "never once murmured".

ALLIES MUST CRUSH NAZIS SAYS BISHOP

TORONTO, April 24—Germany must be crushed, honorary Air Marshal W. A. Bishop said yesterday in a St. George's Day address to the St. George's Society.

"While a war-mongering nation exists in the world, there can be no permanent peace," Air Marshal Bishop declared. "Germany prides herself on being trained for war. Germany must be crushed for there can be no hope of peace."

He recalled that the Royal Navy blockaded the German submarine base at Zeebrugge on St. George's Day in 1918.

"Again, in this war, the same superb navy has excelled herself," he said. "Two weeks ago, when General Von Falkenhorst's air-borne power led her to believe that Norway was hers for the taking, Germany not consulting herself by law or scruples, attacked Norway in sublime confidence. The Royal Navy, with its usual precision and love of contact with the enemy, quickly dispelled these illusions."

While the free institutions of the British commonwealth endure Hitler "cannot triumph," Air Marshal Bishop declared.

ALLIES WILL STRIKE FAST, NEW WARNING

Italy Knows It, Is General Belief In France, Britain

By JEAN ALLARY
Havas Staff Writer

PARIS, April 24.—France and Britain will strike hard and fast in any section of Europe where their interests are threatened by hostile action, it was emphasized today following the two-day session here of the Allied supreme council.

This is clear enough to Italy, it was believed, without any further formal notification from the Allies. The belief is strong, moreover, that despite superficial appearances, Italy actually does not want to get involved in the war and is anxious above all to retain its status as a non-belligerent.

The communique after the council session referred to Allied determination to insure "timely fulfillment of the undertakings of the Allies and the common defence of their interests against any hostile action."

The general form of this statement meant that not only do the Allies stand fast by their guarantees to Rumania and Greece but mean to act with equal decision in any country where their interests are involved in any new coup by Hitler.

RAIN GENERAL ON TUESDAY IN SOUTH ALBERTA

CALGARY, April 24—Rain, ranging from a steady downpour to a scattered drizzle, was fairly general in southern Alberta last night, prolonging flood conditions in the Drumheller valley and promising a serious delay to spring farm operations.

Flood waters in Drumheller slowly receded and the majority of the families made homeless by high water are back in their residences. The Michichi Creek is still about four feet higher than normal but the danger is believed past despite new rainfall.

A fairly steady rain fell yesterday in the Tofield district. Rain of intermittent downpours, Gleichen, Bastano, Strathmore, Okotoks, Airdrie and High River reported light rains in Calgary, a light rain fell throughout afternoon and evening.

Summary of British Tax Increases

A wholesale sales tax rate, the effective date and revenue to be determined, but with a "substantial" yield expected.

A beer tax increase of one penny a pint, effective today, increased annual yield £18,000,000 ($80,100,000).

A liquor tax increase of 15 shillings a proof gallon, effective today, and estimated to yield annually £7,000,000. This increase does not affect exports.

The tobacco tax increased threepence an ounce, effective today, to yield £20,000,000 more annually.

The match tax increased a half-penny a box of 50.

The surtax increased by lowering the exemption from £2,000 to £1,500.

Telegrams increased by three-pence each.

Postal rates on letters raised from one penny to halfpenny, halfpenny to threepence, effective May 1.

No increase in overseas telephone calls; airmail or postage on letters to soldiers.

Total revenues from all these telephone, telegraph and postal increases expected to yield £14,500,000.

salvo burst within 50 yards of the main hangars.

The prime minister in his brief statement to the house announced that Sir Walter Monckton, former director of the press censorship bureau, would assume immediate direction of propaganda in neutral and enemy countries.

Sir Walter will be both deputy director general of the ministry of information under Sir John Reith and an under-secretary of state for foreign affairs.

Mr. Butler told the Commons that any trade negotiations with Russia would take care of Britain's paramount object of preventing war supplies reaching Germany. British-Russian trade negotiations were suspended when Russia invaded Finland.

A spokesman for the government told the house that Danish residents in Britain will not be treated as enemy aliens.

"Many of them are anxious to assist Britain in its struggle against the aggressive tyranny of which Denmark has been made a victim," the spokesman said.

Mr. Chamberlain, answering a question whether the new organization of the ministry of information would end "These conflicting statements we see from time to time in the press," said, "Hope springs eternal in the human breast."

Still to be considered in parliament was the budget, including new tax measures, which was submitted yesterday by the chancellor of the exchequer, Sir John Simon.

EUPEN, Belgium, April 24—A modern garage forming part of the Siegfried line was destroyed today by fire reported to be of incendiary origin.

The garage was a large structure situated at Losheim, on the German-Belgian frontier.

The fire was the second of its kind in a few weeks.

The German authorities were understood to be investigating the circumstances in the belief that both fires were due to sabotage.

B. C. PLANNING STUDY MATTER OF GAS PRICES

Premier Pattullo Makes Announcement After Court Ruling

VICTORIA, April 24.—Premier Pattullo announced yesterday, after a cabinet meeting "the whole matter" of gasoline prices in British Columbia "will be given very full and careful consideration."

The meeting was held after the supreme court of Canada handed down a decision in Ottawa upholding the validity of British Columbia legislation designed to allow the provincial government to set prices through the coal and petroleum products control board act.

CONSIDER WAR EFFECTS

A fuel board order which, in effect, would have reduced retail gasoline prices in most parts of British Columbia by three cents, is still effective, but the premier's announcement indicated it would not be enforced before consideration has been given to the effects of the war on the gasoline industry.

Premier Pattullo said the government would take up the problem after it receives the judgment.

The fuel board's order became effective last August 21, but a British Columbia supreme court injunction restrained it from being enforced. Accepted Vancouver prices would have been reduced from 27 to 24 cents a gallon, including a seven-cent provincial tax.

COMPANIES AGREE

While the case was moving through British Columbia courts last fall, the provincial oil companies agreed with Attorney-General Gordon Wismer not to increase prices until the supreme court of Canada handed down its decision, unless the contemplated increase were reviewed by the British Columbia court of appeal.

Meanwhile, war was declared and United States exchange went to 11 per cent premium, which, according to Victoria businessmen, would have resulted in an increased gasoline price, in the ordinary course of events. Insurance and ocean tonnage rates also were increased.

CHANGES FOR AIR TRAINING SET-UP MADE

Four Commands Will Be Created To Handle Empire Plan

OTTAWA, April 24.—A change in the organization of the British Commonwealth Air Training plan was announced yesterday by the department of national defence. The plan will be organized in four training commands instead of four training groups and two maintenance groups under the jurisdiction of two training commands.

Under the new organization, by the elimination of intermediate headquarters, the air officers commanding will be able to maintain closer supervision over various units under their command and save time and expense.

NO. 1 IN EAST

No. 1 training command with headquarters now functioning in Toronto will include all air force training activities in the greater part of Ontario. The command will be bounded on the east by a line running from Gananoque to Matawa and thence northward along the Ontario-Quebec boundary. On the west the boundary will be the 87th meridian which will take it to the middle of Lake Superior.

No. 2 training command with headquarters now functioning in Winnipeg will include northwestern Ontario, all of Manitoba and northern and eastern Saskatchewan. The western boundary will be a line running from the southwest corner of Manitoba to Lake Reflex on the Saskatchewan-Alberta boundary and thence northward along that boundary.

No. 3 training command whose headquarters will be in Montreal will include the southeastern corner of Ontario, all of Quebec and the Maritime Provinces.

INCLUDES ALBERTA

No. 4 training command whose headquarters will be in Regina will include southwestern Saskatchewan and all of Alberta and British Columbia.

The schools in which pilots, air gunners and air observers for the air forces of Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand will be trained will be grouped under these commands in such a way that each command will be as nearly self-sufficient as possible.

Majority Report States Agreement Violated by C.N.R.

OTTAWA, April 24.—In a majority report given out by Hon. Norman McLarty, minister of labor, a board of conciliation yesterday found the Canadian National Railways had violated terms of existing agreements with sleeping car conductors and porters in Ontario and Quebec and sleeping car porters out of Winnipeg when it made changes in service.

The changes affected assignment of conductors and porters on the Montreal - Noranda, Montreal - Ottawa, Montreal-Toronto, Montreal-Winnipeg and Winnipeg-Flin Flon-Regina runs.

LUXEMBOURG IS PREPARING FOR DEFENCE

Ominous Preparations On German Frontier Are Cause Of Anxiety

LUXEMBOURG, Grand Duchy, of Luxembourg, April 24—Ominous preparations across the German frontier of this tiny grand duchy, wedged between Germany and France on the western front, gave Luxembourg fresh cause for anxiety last night although the war stays in low gear in this region.

At least 13 German bridges are under construction on the Moselle river between Wasserbillig and Warmeldange and several of them extended to mid-river.

The Luxembourgers hastily have begun to build tank traps on the bank opposite the bridges.

On the German side of the Moselle and in an area farther north, along the Sauer river, large numbers of German troops were visible, some of them working bare-backed in the fields and others patrolling the river banks.

Uniformed guards peered through field glasses at all automobiles passing on the Luxembourg side.

This area, from which civilians once had fled at least had its farming population back, for no farm was left untilled—even those within range of France's big guns.

Construction of fortifications still is under way.

OTTAWA, April 24—Canadians studying details of the budget brought down in the British House of Commons yesterday had reason to feel more cheerful about paying their federal income tax.

Citizens of this Dominion have been called upon to help carry the financial burden of the war through taxes on luxuries imposed at the war session of parliament last September. It has been anticipated that further war taxation might be suggested at the forthcoming session, which opens May 16, but the war taxes Canadians pay still fall far short of the imposts levied in the United Kingdom.

A Canadian receiving $3,000 a year, married but without dependent children, pay $36 as Dominion income tax. An United Kingdom resident in the same circumstances, pays approximately $465, according to yesterday's budget announcements in London.

In many classifications of taxation the budget revealed United Kingdom residents are called upon to pay into the public treasury proportionately more than the Dominion takes from its taxpayers.

SAME AS SALES TAX

Of particular interest to Canadians was the proposed new "purchase tax," in effect the counterpart of Canada's sales tax which has been levied at varying rates since 1920 and is now eight per cent.

Beer, and spirits, tobacco, matches and cigarettes, and telephone services are taxed, under the new British budget, at rates believed higher than the dominion taxes on the same commodities.

Only actual change in the income tax regulations was lowering the surtax exemption from £2,000 to £1,500. Other rates remained the same as fixed in the budget address of last September.

For 1940-1941 the United Kingdom taxpayer will contribute at the rate of 18½ per cent. on taxable income up to £165 and 37½ per cent. thereafter. In addition he will pay a surtax on all taxable income over £1,500 at a rate ranging up to 47½ per cent., making a maximum possible tax of 85 per cent on incomes of £50,000 or more.

HOW INCOMES TAXED

An United Kingdom resident receiving a salary of £300, roughly equivalent to $3,000 in Canada at the pre-war rate of exchange, is allowed £170 exemption if he is married but has no dependent children. (Exemption for each dependent child is £50.)

This man would also get a deduction of one-ninth of his total salary, called "earned income," which would amount to £100. Thus his total deductions would be £270, leaving £330 taxable. On the first £165 the tax is half the basic rate of 37½ per cent. of £30.93.

On the remaining £165 the rate is 37½ per cent or £61.88, making a total of £92.91 or, in round figures and allowing £5 to the pound sterling, $464.

A Canadian in the same circumstances has exemptions of $2,000 leaving $1,000 taxable income on which the rate is three per cent. Thus he pays $30.

This was increased by an amendment introduced by the war session of September when a 20 per cent war surtax was added to the total tax payable on 1939 income. Thus the taxpayer in the $3,000-a-year class would pay a total of $36.

Canadian rates increase on a progressive basis starting at three per cent for the first $1,000. Thus on a taxable income of between $1,000 and $2,000 the tax is $30 plus four per cent on the excess over $1,000. This progresses on the basis of a one-per cent increase for every $1,000.

British Press Agrees Budget Shows Country's Determination to Win

LONDON, April 24—The morning press surveyed Sir John Simon's "pay till it hurts—and then some" budget and generally agreed that it showed the grim determination of the British people to pursue the costly war to the end.

Typical comment was a paragraph in the Manchester Daily Dispatch which said the budget shows how colossal is the wealth of this country and therefore how strong "is the economic weapon we can bring to bear against Hitler. The budget may compel very faces in Britain but it will most certainly give Adolf Hitler a headache."

The Daily Express said that the public would praise the Chancellor of the Exchequer for his realism and pay up with a good heart. The Daily Telegraph observed that the budget was certain to make a strong appeal to the public as an imaginative effort to grapple with a tremendous problem.

The Yorkshire Post said the budget was to be welcomed as a fierce instrument of war. Its scale was colossal, the newspaper said, but "we are fighting a terrific war with no early victory in sight. We cannot hope to succeed with half measures."

There were some complaints. The Daily Mail called the budget "bad" because of the "dubious new purchase tax" while the Daily Herald complained that all the new or increased taxes were indirect ones "and indirect taxes always fall most heavily on those with the smallest resources."

EXPECTED MORE

The Manchester Guardian said the budget was less drastic than expected "and almost certainly less drastic than the situation warrants." It said Sir John assumed that Britain would spend during the whole of the current fiscal year only one quarter more than in the first seven months of the war. That estimate "brings us for the whole of this year to a point well below the rate at which Germany is now spending," it added.

The Guardian said that this was nothing to be proud of and was a reflection of the slow rate of mobilization of British resources.

The Morning Advertiser said that many Britons already are feeling the pinch of privation.

"This new budget," it said, "may be for them a complete shipwreck of the last hopes they had."

First Full-Scale Battle With Messerschmitt 110s Reported

WITH THE ROYAL AIR FORCE IN FRANCE, April 24.—Surprised from above by a larger formation of Messerschmitt 110s over the Maginot Line, British Hurricanes yesterday fought their first full-scale action against these twin-engined, cannon-firing enemy fighters.

Only the bare details of the engagement were released, but it was apparent that it lasted only a short time and was "indecisive."

One Hurricane was set on fire by enemy action. The pilot, who took to his parachute before the aircraft crashed, just missed floating down into neutral Luxembourg and being interned. He landed near Sierck, so close to the border that he had only to walk a pace to cross it.

Another Hurricane pilot was wounded in the shoulder, but brought his aircraft down safely at Metz.

Before the action was broken off one Messerschmitt received a heavy burst of machine gun fire and was seen diving steeply with smoke pouring from both its engines. It disappeared over the Luxembourg frontier, where it probably crashed.

The hurricane squadron engaged was last in action on Sunday, when by shooting down five Messerschmitt 109s and one Messerschmitt 110 it brought its bag for the week end up to 10 aircraft at a cost of only two forced landings.

NAZI CLAIMS OF SUCCESSES NOW BACKFIRE

The Facts Have to Be Faced

Speaking at Montreal, Mr. Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, outlined the financial task with which the people of Canada will have to grapple as part of their national war effort, and stressed the point that this will demand from every resident of the country very practical co-operation and a measure of self-sacrifice. Increased incomes due to war operations "must be returned to the state in the form of taxation or subscription to war loans". Not only so; a larger proportion of pre-war incomes will also have to be contributed through taxation or loaned to the Government.

Mr. Towers pointed out that in addition to paying the direct cost of our share in prosecuting the war, Canadians must also provide Britain with Canadian dollars with which she can purchase supplies in the Dominion. This can be done by buying back Canadian securities now held in Britain. A start has already been made in doing this, the Dominion having repatriated bonds held by British investors, with the result that $91,000,000 was placed to Britain's account in Canada and used here for the purchase of supplies. But the repatriation of Canadian securities, federal, provincial, municipal and corporation, now held in Britain, will have to be carried out on a far wider scale.

Canada's war costs for the present year are calculated at $500,000,000. To this must be added whatever amount is required to redeem Canadian securities now British-owned. Otherwise Britain's purchases must be restricted or made elsewhere.

Canada must finance the cost of its war activities out of current production. We cannot borrow abroad. Such borrowings as must be done will have to be done at home. And to keep down the war debt, borrowing will have to be held down to the minimum possible, and the pay-as-we-go rule employed to the limit.

In addition to this we must pay off the loans we have contracted in Britain, directly in money, but indirectly in munitions and other supplies. In a word, Britain can buy goods from us if we accept in payment the bonds we have sold there. This can only be done by the Dominion Government accepting these securities and squaring accounts with the provinces, municipalities and corporations. Which will involve borrowing or the imposition of taxation to the required amount.

If this is not a cheerful consideration, it is necessary that the facts be presented in a straightforward way, and Mr. Towers deserves public thanks for doing this.

What it all amounts to is that every Canadian must spend a good deal more of his time "working for the Government" than he ordinarily does, or wants to. The come-to is the same as though each of us, after doing his day's work, spent a few extra hours making munitions or other needed supplies and handed these over to the Government, with which to carry on our part of the war effort and to buy back the notes we have given abroad in return for money loaned to us and invested here.

Since we cannot deal with the situation in that simple way, we shall have to spare from our earnings the extra amount of money needed to accomplish the results, paying some of it over as heavier taxation, lending the balance to our Government. This means that there will have to be less luxury-buying and a plainer scale of living. Whether we like it or not, that is the only way to carry the cost of a war plus the cost of ordinary government services. It will be well if we all get these facts firmly in mind before the budget is brought down at Ottawa a few weeks hence.

Newfoundland

A former acting prime minister of Newfoundland said at Toronto he thought the island Dominion should become part of the Canadian Confederation. No doubt most Canadians would welcome it into the union. But naturally any proposal to that end must come from the Newfoundlanders themselves, and they have not as yet shown any general disposition to join with us. Current events may be causing a change of opinion on the subject.

For some years the island, which ranks as senior among the overseas states of the Empire, has been administered by a commission, having got its financial affairs badly tangled through heavy borrowing. Canada joined with Britain in making a loan to Newfoundland to ease its troubles; and Canada's naval forces are guarding its coasts and maritime interests in the present war. There was little indication before the war came that its affairs were being restored to order and that parliamentary government might be resumed. The influence of the war on economic conditions there has not been helpful thus far.

Whether these events have caused Newfoundlanders to look with more favor on the union question there is no evidence to show. They have done nothing to cause Canadians to favor the idea more strongly, for they suggest Newfoundland would be a liability rather than as asset to this Dominion.

There are other factors than money in the calculation, however. If enemy forces could establish themselves in Newfoundland they would hold the key position from which to dominate the St. Lawrence route and Canada's whole eastern seabord. It is not altogether an act of charity or good neighborliness that Canada's warships and sailors are patrolling Newfoundland waters and seeing that Nazi U-boat bases are not established on its rugged and scantily populated coasts.

Both Newfoundland and Canada would be more secure if the larger Dominion were permanently responsible for the protection of the smaller.

A United States naval official thinks war between that country and Japan is "inevitable". He is wrong, in the strict meaning of the word. No war has to happen. Wars are not caused by act of God, but by will of designing men. Should the predicted clash occur there will be no mystery about where the responsibility should be placed. It will not be the fault of the Government of the United States.

Swedish gunners have been shooting down Nazi planes, while their Government protested to Berlin against the increasingly numerous flights of its war-birds over Swedish territory. These have been too numerous to be explained away on the supposition that the airmen had lost their bearings. Sweden is being provoked into acts which could be made a pretext for invasion.

Unwelcome as the information is, no one can be surprised to learn that $500,000 may have to be spent to repair the damage done by floods to Alberta highways. This is half the amount appropriated for new highway building, and the construction program will have to be shortened in proportion to the actual cost of the repairs. A discouraging feature is that some highways which were thought to be almost weather-proof have suffered more or less injury. The "permanent" highway in Alberta apparently ranks somewhere near the unsinkable ship in the list of things hoped for but not yet achieved.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

"Mein Kampf" brazenly glorifies lying and deceit as legitimate weapons of the totalitarian state. The treachery and perfidy practised upon weak and neutral Norway is an object lesson of Hitlerian belief in practice. False orders were issued to forts and warships not to fire on the invaders. An army was landed in mufti, disguised as tourists, commercial travellers, friendly sportsmen and scientists, to aid those who should come later by sea and air. Quite obviously, corruption was used to buy the allegiance of key officials. It was an ignoble effort to overcome the two million peaceful people of Norway.

Nazi procurers secured the right man in Major Vidkun Quisling, Head of Norway's anti-Communist National Union party, he is young and ambitious after serving as Minister of Defence from 1931 to 1933. With no members of his party in the Norwegian Parliament, he blithely assumed the offices of Premier and Foreign Minister in the puppet government formed under Nazi control in Room 430 of the Continental hotel after Nazi invaders had entered Oslo without a shot being fired. Many countries have traitors. Quisling will go down to fame as the Benefict Arnold of Norway.

As preparation for the Nazi invasion, German legation officials invited Norwegian leaders to witness a showing of the propaganda film "Baptism of Fire." With grim Teutonic humor, the film is called a "peace" film. It shows in ghastly detail the aerial destruction of Poland by German bombers, and acts as a warning to weak neutrals. Major Quisling was not present; he was in Berlin while the Norwegian invasion was being planned.

BAPTISM OF FIRE

The "peace" film opens with a symbolic power dive on a map of Great Britain, followed by an explosion. Fat Field Marshal Goering appears before the final fade-out to say to the uniformed lyers: "This completes the first phase of the air force's task. As you flyers have kept your promise to annihilate Poland, so you will keep your promise to tackle and destroy England and France."

Last verse of the flyers theme song, "Bombs on England" reads:

> We drive the British Lion to the last > deciding battle.
> We keep court,
> An empire broken up
> That will be our proudest day.

The film isn't intended to inspire goodwill for Germany, but to horrify neutrals and fill them with terror for German ruthlessness.

The Honorable "Jimmy" H. R. Cromwell, U.S. Minister to Ottawa, is to visit Canadian cities in June, while he is cross-Canada tour to become acquainted with all phases of Canadian life. He will be assured of a warm welcome. The new Minister is a maker of precedents, and this is far, his precedents have found favor with the people of the Dominion. His forthcoming trip, when he will make several speeches, is a precedent for Ambassadors. He is one public man in United States life who appears to be aware that a war for democracy is raging in Europe. Out of 1,200 letters he received after his Toronto address expressing his personal sympathy for the cause of the Allies, fewer than a hundred took issue with his address. Most of these were anonymous or bore indication of German origin.

There's a noticeable luke-warm attitude on the part of American public men to express themselves on the war issues. In part, it is due to the reluctance of the British authorities to present their case in the face of American hostility to propaganda. Alfred Duff Cooper, former First Lord of the Admiralty, recently returned from a lecture trip in United States, told a meeting in England last week that neither he nor Leslie Hore-Belisha, former war minister, could procure publication in U.S. journals and magazines for articles dealing with the war issues.

Aversion to war propaganda is one thing; shutting eyes and ears to events that are rocking the world is quite another. The Honorable "Jimmy" Cromwell doesn't believe in playing the role of the three monkeys while serving as his country's representative at Ottawa.

Religion Day By Day

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

AS A NEGRO CARRIES LOADS

With the mein of a conqueror, the Negro waiter goes down the hotel hallway, carrying a small table in each hand and on his head a huge tray full of dishes. "It's the easy way to carry things," he smilingly remarked, in answer to a comment. He does not know that the habit of bearing burdens on the head is derived from long centuries of ancestors, threading the jungle trails of Africa. I am sure he would be interested to hear of the women in the Holy Land who carry heavy jars of water as he is carrying these dishes.

That method of burden-bearing gives an upright carriage which a modern society woman would envy. Oliver Herford in his advised a young woman to take her high heeled slippers off her feet and carry them on her head, to give her a graceful bearing.

Burdens rightly borne do strengthen and beautify life. Wear your troubles as a crown, and you will walk regally. Most cares are carried awkwardly, like misshaped bundles. Christ's burden is light, when under it is put the whole strength of character which He supplies. The Africans in the hotel supported centrally by the spine and the whole symmetrical framework of the body, has its sermon for those of us who tug lopsidedly at the cares we carry.

We would remember, O Lord, that "As thy days, so shall thy strength be"; and that no burden is ever laid upon a child of Thine that may not be borne serenely, and as a means of added strength. Amen.

Read Matthew 11:30.

Avoiding every act which violates the law of neutrality, our hearts, our hopes, our prayers are with the democracies.—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president, American Jewish Congress.

Current Comment

Canada's External Debts

In the current issue of The Banker, a London, England publication, Mr. Donald Cowie makes a point which may have been overlooked by too many Canadians. He suggests that the Dominions will emerge from the war with greatly reduced external debts. And there are two ways in which this will be brought about.

At the present time there are large amounts of Canadian bonds, federal, provincial and municipal, and other securities held in the United States. During the course of the conflict, many of those will fall due and be paid off. It is most unlikely that there will be any replacement of these in United States hands, because, with the exchange against us, for one reason, it would not be good business to market bonds in New York. The natural trend, therefore, will be to reduce that portion.—Windsor Daily Star.

B.C.'s Vital Wheat Interest

Ottawa has just issued figures showing that for the eight months of the current crop year (Aug. 1, 1939, to March 31, 1940) Canada's wheat exports have been 123,394,500 bushels, for which the price realized was $92,472,647. This works out at a fraction below 75 cents per bushel.

But the cost of storage added to the interest charges for this eight months reached about $33,000,000. It requires a very substantial portion of the dollars realized from export wheat sales to carry our present stores of wheat. The net return therefore is far below the government guaranteed price of 70 cents.

Canada is to be fortunate indeed to end the crop year at July 31 with totals sales of 150 million bushels. On the basis of present stocks, Canada will that day have in storage 300 million bushels—practically twice as much as total sales for the current year. The crisis for wheat-growers in this Dominion is contained in the fact that when the new crop comes this Autumn our elevators will already be almost full. Total storage facilities in Canada are around 450 millions. Where to put the crop?

Canada is thus coming shortly face to face with an unprecedented situation in the history of wheat growing in this country. Will the unexampled surplus create a national liability of major proportions? Or what can be done, if the situation is studied in time, to head off a very difficult situation?

Much thought and debate are certain to be centred on this wheat problem at Ottawa, previous to the forthcoming session of parliament. The establishment of a settlement basis of price on the old crop wheat in order to pay the farmers any balance due them on outstanding participation certificates, must be considered, as well as the possibility of a fixed price structure for the new crop. How can such a price be struck on wheat in store in Pacific coast elevators when there is no market basis whatever in existence at Vancouver?

Twenty years ago the grain dealers then centred in Calgary, were very hesitant to make any eastern elevator investments because the firm expectation then was that the Pacific coast would control the movement of all Alberta's production at least. At that time no terminal elevator accommodation had been provided. Now, 20,000,000 bushels of terminal storage and handling facilities are available here, provided largely by government funds, but controlled by eastern interests. Still the throttling of this western route has been consistently manipulated. Natural geographic rights can be disregarded by private interests, if unhindered.

The question of whether the Winnipeg Grain Exchange shall be closed and the government, through the Wheat Board, take over the entire crop, will be considered at Ottawa next month. It is of first importance that British Columbia should be fully represented in any negotiations about these and kindred matters that must get attention at the federal capital.

Will Premier Pattullo act or will Vancouver and the province of British Columbia continue to remain aloof from the grain trade of Canada, allowing the eastbound manipulation to continue unchecked?—Vancouver Sun.

On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

Fifty years ago today (April 24, 1890) the House of Commons passed a bill to incorporate the Grand Lodge of the Orange Order of British America. This statement in itself does not seem very important, but it ended a long and bitter sectarian fight in and out of parliament and illustrated, as perhaps few incidents did, the skill with which Sir John A. Macdonald was able to mix political oil and water.

The Orange society, it need not be stressed, had played a leading part in politics for generations, and had aroused the antagonism of Roman Catholics, both English and French-speaking; but the order was strong in Ontario, where at one time the Liberals used to assert that "every Orange lodge was a Tory committee room," which was, of course, an exaggeration. But this illustrates the bitterness of the position.

When the Orangemen, under Macdonald's Boswell, first asked for a bill of incorporation from the dominion parliament in March, 1883, the measure was given the six months' holst by 106 to 70, votes from Quebec constituting a large part of the majority. The bill was re-introduced in 1884, but the second reading was defeated 105-68.

Years passed. Then came the Jesuits' Estates bill of Quebec, which provoked bitter religious friction in Ontario, the Protestant extremists demanding the disallowance of the bill by the Dominion. Sir John took the view that the bill was one of purely provincial concern and was sustained in that stand by a vote in the House of Commons of 168 to 13. In order to accomplish this Sir John had to secure the support of many followers from Ontario. It was a bitter pill for some of them to swallow, but they gulped it down, and had their reward when, in 1890, enough French-speaking Conservatives from Quebec voted for the incorporation of the Orange society and so paid the party debt to those Ontario Orangemen who had stood by John A. on the Jesuits' estates issue. It was a mighty clever bit of political manoeuvering.

There is no use fooling ourselves. A pack of vicious wolves has been loosed upon the world. —U.S. Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson.

McCoy Health Service

There are several types of crossed eyes, the most common being that condition in which one eye turns in toward the nose. This is called Convergent Strabismus or Squint and will be discussed, as it is the one most often dealt with. Squint usually appears in children between the ages of eighteen months and four years.

The importance of early observation and treatment by a competent Optometrist in cases of strabismus can not be too strongly stressed. As soon as any deviation of the eyes is noticed in children, no matter how young, the condition should not be ignored. Sometimes the parents dismiss the situation lightly by thinking, "O, well, it is something the child will outgrow." Instead of taking this attitude, it is better to take the attitude of helping the child by seeing that he gets the needed attention.

In order to understand how a case of crossed eyes is corrected without surgery simply by assisting the delicate visual apparatus to function normally, let me briefly outline the general routine in a case of convergent strabismus, in which one eye turns toward the nose.

Taking an imaginary case, let us suppose the child is three years old and the mother notices that occasionally the left eye turns toward the nose, especially when the child is tired or when he becomes excited. The child is taken to the Optometrist, who gives the first examination.

Probably the mother finds that the left eye has much poorer vision than the right, or straight eye. The child is given temporary glasses and instruction for improving the vision in the poorer eye. The good eye is bandaged at given intervals so that the poorer eye will be forced to see better. A great deal of time and patience are required, but finally after a few months, both eyes begin to see at the same time, and diplopia or double vision, occurs.

The two eyes, perhaps for the first time in the child's life, begin to see at the same time, but each eye sees a separate picture, causing everything to be double.

At this stage the mother may believe the vision is ruined with a certainty, but the Optometrist assures her that this is exactly what he has been working for.

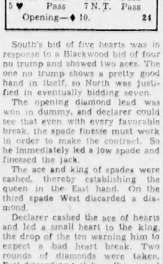

Fusion is the next step, after which only one object will be seen, and the child will have eyes just like everyone else. To accomplish this fusion, the Optometrist uses such instruments as the amblyoscope, the keratometer and myocuinator. It is usually only a short time from the stage of double vision to the stage of single vision—and no more crossed eyes.

As the ultimate success of the treatment depends so much upon early observation and treatment, I suggest that parents with young children with any tendency to crossed eyes, seek help as soon as possible.

South's bid of five hearts was in response to a Blackwood bid of four no trump and showed two aces. The one no trump shows a pretty good hand in itself, so North was justified in eventually bidding seven.

The opening diamond lead was won in dummy, and declarer could see that even with every favorable break, the spade finesse must work in order to make the contract. So he immediately led a low spade and finessed the jack.

The ace and king of spades were cashed, thereby establishing the queen in the East hand. On the third spade West discarded a diamond.

Declarer cashed the ace of hearts and led a small heart to the king, the drop of the ten warning him to expect a bad heart break. Two rounds of diamonds were taken, East discarding a club on the second round. A small club was led to the king and the club returned, declarer winning with the queen.

At this point South laid down the ace of clubs, West showed out, discarding the diamond nine, and the nine of spades was discarded from dummy. Now declarer can safely take the heart finesse, as he has definitely marked East with the queen of spades and jack of clubs.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE

BUFFALO HERD TO BE STARTED MOUNTAIN HOUSE

The government has given Rocky three buffalo, two heifers and bull, which will be the start of a buffalo herd here. Henry Stelfox, old timer and game guardian for 30 years, discovered a natural buffalo park just inside the first range of mountains, about fifty miles southwest of town, and with the Board of Trade, has been urging the government to start a buffalo park here.

At the site he has selected, steep mountains form a natural barrier on three sides and not much fencing is necessary on the fourth side. When three buffalo escaped from the Banff park this winter, and were later reported in the Sundre area, fifty miles south of Rocky, the government said Rocky Mountain House could have them if they could be rounded up, fed and moved. The Board of Trade and Mr. Stelfox got busy and got the animals, which are now pastured on Mr. Stelfox's farm, five miles out of Rocky until the roads dry up so that they can be moved to their permanent quarters.

At the last meeting of the Rocky Mountain School Division No. 15, a delegation from Hola school met the board and asked that something be done as their children have too far to go to school. After considerable discussion, the board decided that if the Hola school were moved north, the Craig school west and a new school built west of the present Hola school, no pupil would have ton far to go to school. This will not be decided upon definitely until the board can visit the districts, which will not be for some weeks, until the roads dry up.

What might have proved a fatal accident occurred at the ferry crossing, when the cable broke letting the cage, used to carry passengers, fall to the ice below. There were six persons in the cage and although they were badly shaken up there was no one seriously hurt. They were taken ashore by row boat.

About one hour after the cage had fallen, the ice started moving out, and it carried the cage, cable and tower about a quarter of a mile down the river before the ferryman was successful in getting them stopped. It took a crew of 5 men the following day to get the cage and the tower out of the river.

ITALY VOTES LARGE SUMS FOR AIR ARM

Press Says Allies Must Take "Reasonable" View In Mediterranean

ROME, April 24—The Italian government last night earmarked additional funds for expanding its air force as the press said Britain and France must take a "reasonable" view of Italy's Mediterranean problems.

Under terms of a new allotment presented to the chamber of Fasces and Corporations, 7,600,000,000 lire (about $426,000,000) are to be used for a vast three-year expansion of military and naval forces, including further armaments and reorganization of bases and services. Three-billion lire is being spent in the 1939-1940 fiscal year, 3,500,000,000 in 1940-41 and 1,100,000,000 in 1941-42.

Dwelling on Italy's Mediterranean issues, the Gazzetta Del Popolo stressed in an editorial the privileged positions which France, Britain and even Spain hold in the Mediterranean in comparison to Italy.

Britain holds Gibraltar, Suez, Malta and Cyprus, and France controls Corsica and Tunisia along the north and east air bases, it pointed out, adding:

"On the other hand Italy, for whom the Mediterranean is a much more vital issue than for any other great power, is almost a prisoner in the Mediterranean and constantly hemmed in.

Claiming that the Franco-British policy toward Italy in the Mediterranean was "systematically hostile," it said London and Paris had resorted to "intimidation" to impose the Allied will on Italy.

BRITAIN LOSES FIVE SHIPS IN NORWAY FIGHTS

LONDON, April 24.—Lord Hankey, minister without portfolio in the war cabinet, told the House of Lords yesterday that Britain's naval losses in Scandinavian waters since Germany invaded Norway and Denmark were three destroyers, one submarine and one trawler.

In addition a fourth destroyer, the Hardy, was beached after suffering heavy damage, he said, and one cruiser and two destroyers returned to their bases after being damaged.

Lord Hankey said the battleship Rodney and the battle cruiser Renown had suffered hits, but no damage serious enough to interfere with their fighting efficiency.

Four more destroyers, he continued, had been slightly damaged and three cruisers had been struck by bomb splinters.

Lord Hankey dismissed German naval claims as "rising in proportion to their losses."

All About Babies

By RICHARD ARTHUR BOLT, M. D., DR. P. H.
Secretary, Maternal and Child Health Section, American Public Health Association

Tuberculosis is a communicable disease to which children are very susceptible, but children do not inherit tuberculosis. A very few babies have been born with tuberculosis acquired from the mother during pregnancy but this is not hereditary in the strict sense of the term. Tuberculosis is usually acquired by children after birth by contact, direct or indirect, with those who have the disease. It may also be acquired by the drinking of milk from tuberculous cows, and from other infected foods. The fatting of fowl before giving it to children, using the same spoon, is especially to be condemned.

Dr. Bolt

The source of infection may be difficult to determine. Sometimes a nursemaid or a relative with unsuspected tuberculosis coming into close contact with the baby gives it the disease. Remember that persons with chronic tuberculosis may have tubercle bacilli in the sputum and not show any of the usual signs of the disease. Those persons may be dangerous carriers and infect the baby.

Old people with so-called "chronic bronchitis" or "asthma" may actually have tuberculosis. Coughing, sneezing or spitting of such individuals in the presence of children may be the source of infection. The bad habit of allowing fond relatives and friends to fondle and kiss the baby has undoubtedly resulted in many cases of infection.

One of the most frequent causes of bone, joint and gland tuberculosis in the 19th century was the feeding of tuberculous milk. Before the days of efficient pasteurization this form of tuberculosis was widespread. The only safe milk to give to babies and young children is milk that has been properly pasteurized or boiled.

By childhood tuberculosis we now mean the first or initial infection with tubercle bacilli. It usually takes place in some of the lymph glands. If the child's resistance is high and no other infectious disease or malnutrition comes in to break down this resistance the tuberculous infection will remain as the childhood type. Resistance may break down, however, at any time from added infection or from other causes and the tuberculosis take on the adult or secondary form in the bones, joints, lungs and elsewhere.

It is important to make an early diagnosis of tuberculosis in childhood.

CONSTANCE E. CLEMENS

Graduation exercises of the Royal Alexandra Hospital School of Nursing saw honors conferred upon five outstanding members of the class, two of whom are pictured here. Miss Constance E. Clemens, daughter of Mrs. B. M. Clemens of Sedgewick, Alberta, won the Gold Medal presented by the Edmonton Hospital Board for the highest marks in examinations during the three years' course. Miss Mary C. LeLacheur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson D. LeLacheur of Edmonton, received a prize given by the medical staff of the hospital for proficiency in the theory and practice of medical nursing. Other winners were Miss Elizabeth Anne Yakulic of Lethbridge, silver medallist; Miss Christina A. Winning of Crossford, the Edith P. Wilson proficiency prize winner, and Miss Felicity Hydes of Lloydminster, the winner of a prize for second highest standing in general proficiency.

Forty-Two Nurses Receive Diplomas, Pins at R.A.H. Nursing School Graduation

REPEATING the solemn yet lovely words of the Florence Nightingale Pledge for nurses during a colorful graduation ceremony in First Presbyterian church on Wednesday afternoon, 42 young graduates of the Royal Alexandra Hospital School of Nursing made known their desire to dedicate themselves to the upholding and strengthening of the high ideals and standards of the profession in which they were being admitted and pledged themselves to the care of the sick and the alleviation of suffering. Following repetition of the pledge they received their diplomas and pins, symbols of their graduation as full-fledged nurses.

The occasion—the graduation day of the thirty-third class of the hospital—was a day of happy exhilaration for the student nurses who, upon receiving their diplomas, entered into the most important phase of their lives as nurses, the post-graduate days when the instruction they have received during the past three years as students will be carried out into the many posts awaiting them. Thronging the church for the occasion were parents and friends of the graduating class and friends of the hospital.

SPEAKERS

Chairman for the program was Alderman G. A. Campbell, who is chairman also of the Edmonton Hospital board. Address in honor of the graduating class was given by His Honor, John Campbell Bowen, Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta.

Among the other distinguished officials of church and city present to extend their congratulations to the class were His Worship Mayor John W. Fry, who presented the prizes to their winners, Mrs. Thos. Taylor, president of the Edmonton Local Council of Women, and member of the board, who presented the pins and diplomas, and Rev. J. Gordon Brown, who asked the invocation and led in the repetition of the Florence Nightingale pledge.

Dr. A. F. Anderson, superintendent of the hospital, submitted his yearly report and address to the class, and Miss Margaret Fraser, superintendent of nurses, gave her annual report of the school.

Entertainment was provided by members of the Nursing School Choral club, singing under the direction of Mr. G. A. Kevan. Mr. Henry Alack was organist.

PRIZE WINNERS

Prize winners of the class who received their awards on Wednesday were: Miss Constance E. Clemens, daughter of Mrs. B. M. Clemens of Sedgewick, Alta., who won the gold medal given by the Edmonton Hospital board for the highest marks in examinations during the three years; Miss Elizabeth Anne Yackulic of Lethbridge, who won the silver medal given by the Edmonton Hospital board for the second highest marks in examinations during the three years; Miss Christina A. Winning of Crossfield, the Edith P. Wilson general proficiency prize, given by the Women's Auxiliary for the highest standing in general proficiency.

Prizes given by the medical staff were won by Miss Felicity Hydes, of Lloydminster, who won the prize for the second highest standing in general proficiency and Miss Mary C. LeLacheur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson D. LeLacheur of Edmonton, who won the prize for proficiency and in the theory and practice of medical nursing.

Graduates of the school of nursing of the hospital number 701, said Miss Margaret S. Fraser in her report, as superintendent of nurses, and there are 234 nurses in training in the hospital.

Miss Gertrude Allen of the hospital's staff is absent at present, taking a course in administration at the Teachers' College, Columbia University, following a practice of the hospital that all nurses appointed to the nursing staff must take post graduate work. This policy met with the hearty approval of Dr. Harvey Agnew, secretary of the Canadian Hospital Council, who in Edmonton on a recent visit, she said.

Many of the nurses at the hospital, said Miss Fraser, have enrolled for war nursing duty, but have not been called as yet. Tribute to the loyalty of the nurses in the hospital in their ever-constant vigilance on behalf of the patient, was paid in her report.

With the types of duties expected of nurses constantly increasing in number, it is worthy to note that the hospital is keeping abreast of these needs. She expressed thanks also to the Women's Auxiliary of the hospital. The public health facilities of the city have also aided, Dr. Anderson said. She mentioned, too, the recreational choral singing group formed among the undergraduate nurses.

Following the exercises tea was served in the dining room of the church. Graduation entertainment committee consisted of Mrs. J. P. Page, Mrs. C. McManus, Mrs. T. Taylor and Adj. G. A. Campbell.

Soup Makes One-Dish Supper on Spring Night

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

A great tureen of soup, made of the garden's finest vegetables, can be a one-dish supper on spring nights. Moriz Rosenthal, noted Polish pianist, says these recipes help him stay active even at the age of 78. So his recipes are worth trying.

KAPUSNIAK (Cabbage Soup)
(Serves four to six)

One small head cabbage, 1 leek, 1 parsnip, 1 stalk of celery, a few strands of parsley, 1 onion, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 cup sour cream, 3 cups beef stock, 1 teaspoon salt, few grains pepper.

Cut cabbage into quarters, scald with boiling water. Drain, add cut-up soup greens (leek, parsnip, celery, parsley), enough water to cover; boil till tender. Chop onion very fine, fry with flour in butter blending well. Cool and add sour cream, then gradually add stock, cabbage with greens, and cabbage water. Heat well, but do not boil. Serve very hot.

KRUPNIK (Mushroom and Barley Soup)
(Serves six to eight)

Six ounces pearl barley, 2 quarts beef stock, ¼ pound of butter, 1 large onion, 2 carrots, 1 turnip, 1 leek, 1 stick celery, ½ cup dried mushrooms, few strands parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 3 tablespoons sour cream.

Place the barley in a pan with a small quantity of the stock, and bring to a boil. Simmer, adding butter gradually. Chop up mushrooms and boil them with vegetables in the remainder of the stock. Add barley, salt, pepper, sour cream, simmer for a few minutes, then serve.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Apple and rhubarb sauce, cornbread, honey, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Scrambled eggs with dried beef, green salad, nut cookies, tea, milk.

DINNER: Krupnik (mushroom and barley soup), hard rolls, cheese, cottage pudding strawberry sauce, coffee, milk.

What To Do

Should a young man as lone dinner guest be served first by the hostess? If one's sister is a house guest and two or three friends come in for informal tea, is it not the gracious thing to always serve the sister first? When guests at dinner are served before the hostess, is it correct to begin with the guest at the hostess' right and finish out that side of the table and around in order? When two couples dine out in public is there a hard and fast rule about the seating, that is, women opposite or next to one another? Thank you. MRS. J. S. N.

Answer—When the man guest of honor is a distinguished person or an elderly gentleman he is served before the hostess. But when a young man is the only guest, then the hostess is served first. One's sister always remains a part of the family, whether she is a house guest or a permanent resident, and should be served after the visiting friends. Service begins with the woman guest of honor who is seated to the right of the host, but when the hostess acts in the capacity of both host and hostess, the guest of honor to her right is served first, the serving continuing around the table. Any hostess being served last. No longer are women served first and then the men. The correct seating is always to alternate men and women—in other words, women should sit opposite one another. Inasmuch as women are always seated first, it is up to them to see that they seat themselves correctly—that is, not to take the places left vacant for them, which should be opposite and not side by side.

Minute Make-Ups

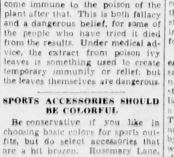

4-24

So many people want to know what the back of the compulsory hair-do looks like that we show you this. The hair is waved in front and is kept in the compulsory but invisible combs. The hair over the crest of the head is straight and curls are used at the nape of the neck. It's very smart.

Debunker

EATING POISON IVY WILL NOT MAKE YOU IMMUNE

There are many people who will tell you that if you would eat some poison ivy leaves, you would become immune to the poison of the plant after that. This is both fallacy and a dangerous belief, for some of the people who have tried it died from the results. Under medical advice, the extract from poison ivy leaves is something used to create temporary immunity or relief, but the leaves themselves are dangerous.

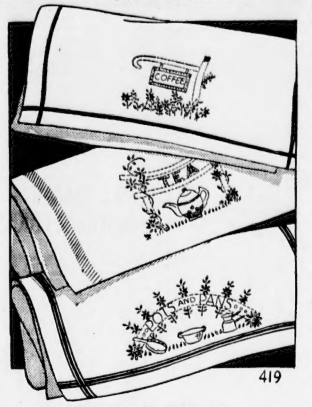

SPORTS ACCESSORIES SHOULD BE COLORFUL

Be conservative if you like in choosing basic colors for sports outfits, but do select accessories that are a bit brazen. Rosemary Lane, screen star, likes to wear with her brown sweater and golf skirt, a wide brilliant red suede belt, a matching red scarf tied Cuban fashion around her hair and a brown pliable envelope purse shot through with vivid red wooden golf tees.

DESIGN NO. 419—NEEDLE-ART

Because these designs have an Oriental air they have been called "Tea Garden" Towels. There are three separate designs and the pattern includes two transfers for each so that you can make them in pairs. Lacquer red and Chinese blues are popular colors for working.

If the towelling you select has old gold borders, the effect will be strikingly smart and most unusual. The pattern includes transfers for six towels (3 pair) also complete stitch and color charts and directions for stamping and working.

To order this pattern, write your name and address on a piece of paper and send with 15 cents in coin to Needlework Department, The Edmonton Bulletin, Edmonton, Alberta.

On The Record

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Notes On Turkey

ANKARA, April 24.—In the few days I have been in Turkey I have had long conversations with ministers, other government functionaries and with leading Turkish journalists. I have also talked with foreign diplomatists and journalists. The sum of various views presented is approximately as follows:

D. Thompson

Turkey signed a treaty with Great Britain last October. In the hope that it would help avert war. At the time Turkey believed that a sufficiently strong peace front would discourage Germany from moving any farther than it had already done. The Turkish government had previously discussed the British treaty with Russia and had been advised by Russia to go ahead and sign. The Turks are now emboldened against Russia because they know that while Russia was advising them to sign with Britain she was negotiating with the Nazis. They feel especially disillusioned because prior to this negotiations between Turkey and Russia had been model.

The Turks admit frankly that they owe Russia a great deal, both for the immediate recognition of their independence and for the political and economic aid which Russia gave them when they sorely needed it.

In so far as they excuse Russia's conduct they do so on two grounds: first, her extreme internal weakness which they think makes it impossible for Russia to become involved in a major war, and secondly, the distrust which Russia has of the Western nations, the fear that they have been to "pull Western chestnuts out of the fire," and her feeling that the British were trying to engineer conflict between Germany and Russia rather than build a real peace front.

The Turks do not believe this thesis, but some of them do think that the British treated Russia with great lack of tact and were afraid of the Communist bogy.

The Turks also think the other neutrals made an enormous mistake in believing that, isolated, they could protect their neutrality in this war. They consider the Scandinavian countries outstanding examples of this lack of a realistic neutrality policy.

Turkey has had the longest stretch of peace in more than a hundred years' history, and this era of peace has corresponded to a period of national reconstruction. She suffered war after war under the Ottoman Empire, lost her empire in the World War—in which she suffered prodigious losses—and afterward, in the struggle for independence, was engaged in war with one or another of the Balkan countries until 1924. The idea that the peace with its era of reconstruction is every field, should be interrupted by another war is profoundly discouraging.

But Turkey argues that this is essentially a war between nations satisfied with the status quo and nations that want to change the status quo by force. Nobody believes that there is such a thing as permanent status quo, but the Turks think that neither Britain nor France was strong enough, nor by nature belligerent enough to want to oppose even radical changes provided such changes occurred through negotiation and evolution.

In the Turkish concept the term status quo nations is by no means synonymous with "Allied" nations. They point out that some of the most peaceful nations and those most anxious to maintain the status quo are poor in natural resources like the Turks, who have definitely renounced the idea of imperialism and consider themselves well rid of the congeries of nations and the vast areas they previously ruled that rotted away from under them, believe that the strong states of the future will be those that are best organized internally to develop their own human and physical resources and to live on friendly terms with their neighbors. Thus they count themselves on the side of the status quo nations and believe their fate is bound up with them.

In evaluating the situation in the Balkans as a whole the Turks argue as follows, always emphasizing that they are speaking only from hypothesis and logic: "We don't know what anybody else is going to do, they say. "We only know what we shall do under certain circumstances."

There are reasons why they think that Germany may be slow to take the initiative in the Balkans before affairs are settled in the West; they believe it very difficult for Germany, Italy and Russia to agree on any common program for the Balkans except maintenance of the status quo.

Russia certainly does not want the Germans on the Black Sea—that would be catastrophe for her. The Russians are wholly satisfied with the present status of the Dardanelles in Turkish hands.

Italy does not want the Germans on the Adriatic, and she is equally afraid of Russian influence in the Balkans whether it takes the form of pan-Slavism, algesys latent, or overt, as it means the extension of Communism.

Anti-Communism is the one thing that Germany needs the resources which the Balkans can furnish but which might be seriously disorganized by war. For instance, in the event of an attack on Rumania that country's oil wells undoubtedly would be destroyed.

The Turks are skeptical about the possibility of the totalitarian nations being able to agree on any program of dividing the Balkans into spheres of influence. They recall that even when Napoleon and Alexander sat down in amity at Tilsit, where all was love and kisses, the Balkans stumped them.

They see a certain analogy between Scandinavia and the Balkans. They argue that Germany will move in the Balkans only if Allied influence there becomes so strong that she feels forced to do so in order to protect her economic situation, but they doubt that mere economic action on the part of the Allies will be sufficient to cause Germany to move.

All arguments are qualified by the remark, "Of course, no one knows what Hitler may do or exactly why he may do it," and the Turks are quite convinced of the possibility of illogicality in Hitler's moves because they see no sense at all in the war from Germany's standpoint. If Germany really wants "Lebensraum" they ask why she doesn't move to get it and Germany would inevitably have obtained by peace?

If Germany had sought the peaceful collaboration of all the central European states and had made herself their patron and defended their independence, no power on earth could have prevented her from being the dominating power in central and eastern Europe, purely by weight of numbers and superior industrial and technical organization. So they argue that since this whole war is lunacy on Germany's part, you never can tell what new madness any day may bring.

Hips, Waistline Should Be In Good Proportion

By ALICIA HART

If your hips are more than ten inches larger than your small waistline of which you are quite proud, no doubt some special exercises to reduce hip measurements are very much in order.

If your waistline is less than ten inches smaller than your hips which seem to be about right, then get busy with stretching exercises designed especially to whittle down the midriff.

In other words, if your waistline measures 27 inches, your hipline ought to measure 37 — no more, no less. If waist is 26, hips should be 36. According to all figure experts in Hollywood studios, in New York beauty salons and in the model agencies, these proportions are right.

Rolling exercises will do the taking-down-the-hips job in record time and without help or need of starvation diet. The stretching and bending routines are recommended for one who is determined to have a slender waistline.

If you have plenty of space you can roll over and over from one end of the room to the other, keeping your head and your feet slightly off the floor. As you roll, all your weight should be on hips and thighs.

ONE GOOD TURN DESERVES ANOTHER

If you do not have a large room in which to exercise, simply roll over and over to the left, then back—over and over—to the right. This is just as efficacious as rolling from one end of a room to the other. Be sure to keep arms folded across chest, head up and feet, with ankles together, off the floor. Try 20 rolls a day to start, gradually increasing the number until you are rolling over and over at least 80 times a day.

For the waistline, practice bending backward, to the right and to the left as well as forward. And remember to stretch several times a day. Try to touch the ceiling with your hands. Lift and stretch the upper half of your body up and away from the lower half. Give that lazy waistline a real workout.

ENCHANTING LILY POOLS THRIVE WITH LITTLE CARE

Use Any Watertight Container

Would you like a little variety, the shimmer of water in your garden this year? Make a lovely lily pool.

Once planted, it will need no care until fall, except for an occasional pail of water.

Your pool can be made in anything watertight—a tub, barrel, tank or a big hole in the ground puddled with clay. Just fill with soil to within six inches of the top and add water.

For small pools, pigmy lilies are best and one plant will give a hundred lovely blooms, in white, red or yellow. And charming to edge your pool with flagstones, grow creeping butter cup and marsh-marigold between them. For taller plants to be reflected in the pool, choose iris, arrowhead, fountain grasses.

It's time, too, to think of rock gardens! They can give pleasure all year and you can quickly make one. In a shady spot, ferns and shy primroses do beautifully. Where there's sun, grow creeping phlox and golden moss. In very sunny, dry spots, have a cactus garden.

Our 32-page booklet gives step-by-step directions for both rock gardens and lily pools. It tells how and where to make them; what to plant and when; how to keep them looking a minimum of care.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "How to Make Rock Gardens and Lily Pools" to The Edmonton Bulletin, Home Service, Edmonton, Alberta. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Please allow a week or ten days for delivery.

Dorothy Dix Says:

A masculine correspondent thinks that the feminine sex would take a long step forward in progress if it would discard all of its frills and furbelows and adopt a standardized dress, such as men have done. He says that this would do away with envy and rivalry between women, and that this would be a happy and inexpensive world if every woman had on virtually the same sort of hat and dress that every other woman was wearing. Maybe so. Maybe so. But what an ugly, drab world it would be! And what a dumb one! For what would women have to talk about if they couldn't talk about clothes? Surely we haven't so much gayety and color and beauty in life that we can afford to throw any of it away.

Perhaps fashion is spinach, as one of its critics has declared it is, but even so, it is a feminine tonic that is good for whatever ails women in body and soul.

It is a topic of conversation that never runs dry, it is a perpetual source of interest. It is an outlet for pent-up emotion. A woman goes to bed and buys a new dress to celebrate her good luck, instead of getting drunk as a man does.

And especially do women express their individuality in their clothes. And just as a great naturalist can reconstruct an animal from a single bone, so any astute observer can give one glance at a woman's hat and make a virtually correct estimate of her entire character.

If she is fat and careless and bedruffled until she looks like Blowzabella, you know that she is good-natured and lazy and easygoing, but that she is totally without judgment or discrimination. She will make the kind of a wife who will throw half of her husband's earnings in the garbage can, never have a meal on time or a room that is in order, and who will let her children grow up without manners or training.

If a woman always looks as if herward-robey had bought her clothes you know she is lacking in perception and good hard common sense.

The women who are frowsy and untidy are trifling and no-account. They are too indolent to keep themselves tidy, and the unfortunate men who marry them will never be able to make headway against their thriftlessness.

But, on the other hand, the girl who is always appropriately dressed, who is spick and span, clean and well pressed shows that she has intelligence, taste, discrimination and self-respect, and she is a good bet as a wife.

Nor should it ever be forgotten that women's clothes not only enhance their virtues but are an everpresent help in times of trouble in camouflaging their faults. Swirling chiffons and foamy laces and ravishing colors change the homely girl into a living picture that men desire to hang upon their walls.

When Mother Eve gained enlightenment by eating of the fruit of the Tree of Knowledge, the first thing that she did was to make herself a dress. And when are her daughters when they follow her example.

DOROTHY DIX.

Montreal and Toronto

MONTREAL, April 24—Rails, utilities and metals continued steady in late dealings on the stock market today while other groups turned soft.

In constructions, Canada Cement, Dominion Bridge, Foundation and General Steel Wares displayed lower trends while in papers Price Brothers, St. Lawrence Paper Pfd., and Bathurst were minus small fractions.

Brazilian and Bell Telephone were slightly stronger utilities and C.P.R. held an early gain in rails.

Canadian Celanese and Distillers-Seagrams improved somewhat while metals continued to hold even.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, April 24—Aircrafts, under the depressing drag of heavy steels, slipped badly today, carrying much of the stock market lower. Losses of as much as two points hit the aviation shares near the close after an early rally, led by rails, had been stifled. About 900,000 shares changed hands.

On the downside were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, American Airlines, American Woolen and Chrysler. Among those favored were Great Northern pfd., Case, International Harvester, Southern Railway, Pacific American Fisheries and Standard Oil of N.J.

Broomhall

Great Britain bought in Buenos Aires Monday night. The quantity was not divulged. The price f.o.b. Buenos Aires according to trade quotations today is 74c a bushel and the freight 43s 6d per long ton which at the free exchange rate is 31c on British vessels only. This would make the wheat slightly less than $1 delivered at English coastal mills. This is very close to the price of Australian wheat shipped on British vessels to England. Number 2 Manitobas wheat futures about 3 cents higher. Spain is still enquiring for American or Canadian wheat and are supposed to need 750,000 bushels wheat. Portugal bought a cargo of American wheat last week. Belgium and Greece are also inquiring for Canadian wheat. So even if Great Britain has already covered the requirements for May and part of June shipment out of the St. Lawrence, there will be other countries willing to buy this strong wheat, of which there is plenty for everyone, providing the price is reasonable and vessels are obtainable around 42 cents.

Germans Regret Trespassing Over Swedish Territory

BERLIN, April 24—Sweden's protest against German flights over Swedish territory have been answered with an expression of regret that few cases of trespassing could be established and that in such cases the incursions were unintentional.

Sweden disclosed Monday that it had protested to Berlin against violations of her frontiers by German planes, which were described as "numerous and grave," and asked assurance that there would be no repetitions.

(The protest was filed not long after Swedish anti-aircraft batteries had shot down a German plane which flew over fortified island off Goteborg, disregarding a warning to veer off. Swedish newspapers expressed belief that German reconnaissance planes had been "deliberately" flying over Sweden's fortified zones.)

Chinese Wrest Kaifeng From Jap Invaders

CHUNGKING, April 24. — The Chinese central news agency reported today that Kaifeng, Honan Province, had been wrested from the Japanese — the first provincial capital to revert to Chinese hands since the Chinese-Japanese war began July 7, 1937.

Chinese military circles here, however, said they had no confirmation of this report. The agency operates under the central Chinese government at Chungking.

The agency said the Chinese had also recaptured Hwaiyang, 80 miles south of Kaifeng.

NICKEL COMPANY WILL EXPAND IN 1940 OPERATIONS

TORONTO, April 24.—Capital expenditure estimated at $8,325,000 for 1940 will be expended largely in concentrator and smelters improvements to provide capacity for treating up to 30,000 tons of ore a day, Robert C. Stanley, chairman and president of the board of directors of International Nickel Company of Canada, Limited, told shareholders at the company's annual meeting today.

The company's policy now is, said the president, to extract more ore of lower grade, thus extending the life of the mines.

Due to the war, operations have ceased at the company's property in Finland and the future of that property is uncertain, the president told shareholders.

Since its acquisition in 1934 there has been expanded a total of $6,723,908 there and it is estimated that an additional $3,500,000 will be required to complete the project."

Mr. Stanley added that a reserve of $6,723,908 had been provided from earned surplus to cover the outlay to date.

Heavy sales in the United States were providing the company with sufficient U.S. funds for all requirements and there would be no interruption to dividend payments in Canada or other countries.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The U.S. army and navy, increasingly concerned with defence of the whole western hemisphere, soon will have 11 military missions in key Spanish-American nations to assist them in improving their air, sea and land forces.

The eleventh mission was arranged for yesterday when the U. S. state department announced that Chile had signed a three-year contract for a mission of three army fliers to aid in developing its aviation. Their mission expects to sail on Friday.

The U.S. army has a seven-man air corps mission in Argentina, and smaller groups of officers in Guatemala, Brazil, Colombia, Haiti and Nicaragua.

New School Tenders To Be Called Soon: Board To Make Sale

Edmonton public school board trustees took action to dispose of one school building in the city and to check architect's specifications for the building of the proposed new West End school at a meeting of the board in the Civic block Tuesday night.

The board agreee to a recommendation from the property committee that tenders be invited for the purchase of the Vermilion Avenue school on 107 avenue and 115 street. The school has not been used since June of 1936, although a tenant has occupied the building until a few weeks ago.

The finance committee reported that negotiations had been completed to purchase the land and buildings owned by G. G. Harman for the sum of $4,000. The property is on the site selected for the new West End high school.

CALL TENDERS SOON

Architects' plans for the new project are expected to be completed later this week and the board hopes to meet Friday to go over the specifications. The board expects to call for tenders on the school early next week. The school is to be built on 127 street between 109 and 109A avenues. Rule and Wynn are the architects.

The board agreed to a recommendation from the property committee that the cinder sidewalk on the east side of the Norwood school grounds be replaced by a bituminous walk with concrete base, provided the necessary funds of $635.57 can be found to permit the work to be paid for on a cash basis.

ACCOMMODATION ASKED

A request from the St. John Ambulance Association for accommodation in which to carry on its teaching of first aid and home nursing training was turned down because all available rooms in the schools in the central portion of the city are now being used for school purposes.

The board agreed to a request from Lt.-Col. H. S. Davies, M.G. officer commanding the Edmonton Fusiliers, that the unit be allowed to use the grounds of McKay Avenue public school for drill purposes between the hours of 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. until the middle of July.

NEW SCHOOL IS REQUESTED BY DISTRICT

Forest Heights Delegation Protests Present Accommodation

A plea for better school accommodation in the Forest Heights district was heard by the Edmonton school board Tuesday evening at a meeting in the Civic block. A two-man delegation, consisting of J. Cockram and J. Summers, representing residents of Forest Heights, asked that the trustees give consideration to the building of a new school in the district and that Grades 7, 8 and 9 be taught in the school. Trustee A. E. Ottewell presided as chairman.

The delegation stated that the board had promised that when a new school was built in the city, the Forest Heights district would be given first consideration. In view of the fact that plans are now under way to build a high school in the Garneau district, the delegates felt that the board should give Forest Heights better facilities.

FIRE TRAP

"The present school is a fire trap and a menace to the safety of the children," declared Mr. Summers in listing reasons why a new school should be built. He stated that the school is located on low-lying ground and that during the present flood conditions prevailing in the city, children have been forced to wear long rubber boots in order to attend classes.

In dealing with the accommodation of the school, he pointed out that in one room there were 48 students in grades ranging from one to three. He maintained that this did not give the students an opportunity to receive the proper attention from the teacher.

Mr. Cockram asked that the school board take action to have grades 7, 8 and 9 taught at Forest Heights as students now taking those grades are forced to walk two and three miles to school.

REPORT ASKED

The delegation was informed by Mr. Ottewell that the board had the problem of school accommodation at Forest Heights under consideration and intimated that there was a possibility that a third room might be added to the present structure. The board agreed to a motion to have the property committee inspect the present school and Superintendent of Schools G. A. McKee was instructed to make a report to the board on the present enrollment at the school and the possible enrollment at the beginning of the term next September.

Car Slips In Hole

At the week-end Sidney Weber, 11146 63 street, went to his garage to take the car out, and found it gradually slipping into a hole which had formed during the night. He called for help from the local garage, and with the aid of a tractor, truck and jacks the car was rescued from a 10-foot deep cave-in that had demolished the floor of the garage. City officials say the cave-in may have been caused by undermining from an old cesspool, many of which dotted the area years ago.

Royal Society Toasts England and Empire at St. George's Banquet

About 150 members of the Edmonton branch of the Royal Society of St. George gathered in the Corona hotel Tuesday evening to celebrate St. George's Day by eating "roast beef of Old England" with Yorkshire pudding and listening to speakers sing the praises of England of the past and the Empire of the present and future.

Dominant factor in the growth of the Empire has been Britain's supremacy on the sea, said Col. W. F. W. Hancock, assistant commissioner of the R.C.M.P. commanding "K" (Alberta) division, in proposing the toast to England and the British Empire. He recalled that Tuesday was also the anniversary of the battle of Zeebrugge when the British navy stormed the German naval base bottling up the U-boats just 22 years ago.

"Their battle cry was 'St. George for England!' and we find history repeating itself today," said Col. Hancock in a witty and impressive address in which he lauded the praises of the Empire and British diplomacy.

FAIR PLAY

"The Englishman is a solid matter-of-fact, easy-going individual who is fond of fair play and not a good hater. He is democratic in his ideas and not nearly as aggressive as some of his neighbors—and I'm not mentioning any names. But he is very tenacious and has a reputation for never knowing when he is beaten and always winning the last battle," said the colonel.

Responding to the toast to England and the Empire, His Honor J. C. Bowen, lieutenant-governor, said: "England takes her place in the forefront of nations willing to make sacrifices for freedom and the home.

"Today she is confronting an ideology of power, dominating, ruthlessness, dishonesty and cruelty, a people who are willing to sacrifice their men and gamble to accomplish their fiendish purposes, not only against the free but against the entire world. I feel that that shall never be.

DESTINED IDEALS

"The British Empire is built upon definite ideals. There is the British monarchy, which is distinct from all other conceptions of monarchy and our Royal family holds a high place in the hearts of all people of the Empire and receive a love, loyalty and devotion accorded to no others elsewhere. Today the King is the ideal of all and the symbol of all virtues" said the lieutenant-governor. "Today the monarch has greater power and influence than ever before in its history.

"Finally we have a great idea of democracy. The seeds of the American revolution were sown in this continent with the Pilgrim Fathers on the Mayflower as the seeds of the French revolution came from England. Back of all democracy today is this fact—that the idea of modern democracy came from England and the great ideal spread throughout the world for the betterment of humanity.

"If we were fighting to save the world for democracy in the last war we are fighting to save democracy from tyranny today and it should be no half-hearted affair. It is a crusade to give to all nations and men the right to live their own lives in their own way in their own freedom and according to the dictates of their own consciences."

Toast to "The Royal Society of St. George" was proposed by R. W. Ellis, who said: "Today in old Europe a dragon is once more roaming the land, devouring the weak and helpless and once more the English people have put on the mantle of St. George and gone out to fight that dragon. And Hitler will find the new army just as tough as the old one."

W. H. Heller, honorary president of the organization, replied to the toast. He has seen five crowned heads, he said. "And I tell you that King George and Queen Elizabeth are typical of the best crowned heads we have ever had."

"In my time I have seen war after war. And now we have another one because the German people took a man from the gutter and gave him the power of an emperor, and he didn't know how to use it properly," said Mr. Heller.

WREATH PLACED

Executive officers of the Society placed a wreath at the base of the cenotaph earlier in the day in honor of the war dead.

A feature of the gathering was the presentation to each guest of an artificial rose, sent from England especially for the St. George's Day celebration here. They were handed out by disabled British ex-servicemen.

The program included a vocal solo, "There'll Always Be An England," by Chas Schroeder, theme, accompanied by Mrs. F. Lewis. Mr. Schroeder also led the gathering in the singing of "Land of Hope and Glory."

Dancing followed the dinner.

Edmonton branch executive members of the Society are: F. J. Knight, president; F. Allen, first vice-president; R. Reid, second vice-president; Rev. Canon G. G. Reynolds, chaplain, and H. Horrocks, secretary-treasurer.

Rabbits Stolen

Peter Jacob, 13, of 8711 111 avenue, reported to police that within the past two days someone has stolen three Chinchilla rabbits from a pen in his back yard.

Scuttling of the Graf Spee, German pocket battleship, was seen in moving pictures shown to the Cosmopolitan Club at the Corona hotel Tuesday. A second film of Finland prior to the Russo-Finnish war also was shown. The films were shown by H. P. Brown of the University of Alberta extension department.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

"What were you thinking about when you last daydreamed before you?" asked the Inquiring Reporter today.

THE ANSWERS

D'ARCY McLEOD: I was just thinking that aviation is a cinch today compared with the days when I was barnstorming around Ontario and that wasn't very long ago either. Say, how would you like to buy a return ticket to New York just to help my sales for the month? You'd be surprised how little it costs to fly.

EDWARD WILKINSON, salesman: I wasn't thinking. I was just looking at the sky and meditating that it will probably be weeks before I can get my car over the country roads again. And the next gang on regardless of the weather. Why have you this morning in the way of intriguing thoughts that will stop a man thinking?

* * *

EDNA CROSS, salesgirl. These little trinkets you see spread out in front of us here look pretty cheap now, but I was just thinking that by 5:30 they look terrible. It's funny how circumstances alter one's outlook.

* * *

MARY CROMWELL, salesgirl: I was just thinking that if it doesn't warm up pretty soon it will be summer before it is spring and then I won't be able to wear my new spring outfit and by next spring the styles will probably have changed. You never have no idea how lucky you are.

* * *

ROBERT N. DENNIS, bookkeeper: I figure that this snow was the last straw and that from now on the weather is going to be fine. I figure we'll be able to get our golf started about Saturday. Boy, I bought a new driver the other day and I can hardly wait to get started. It has the

CAST OF CHARACTERS

SHERRY BOND, society girl owner of race horse, Pepper Boy.

PAUL WHARTON, a rival owner, determined to teach Sherry that racing is not a woman's game.

SHEP GRANT, young gentleman rider.

WILLIE BOND, Sherry's uncle, a turf "adviser."

Yesterday: Desperately in need of money, Sherry Bond decides to enter her colt, Pepper Boy, in a claiming race rather than in the Handicap against Paul Wharton's Red Soldier, to take no chances on losing. Wharton learns of her plan, orders his trainer to claim the colt. If Sherry wants to play a man's game, she'll learn a few things.

"What's that light doing in my window?"

Sherry Bond asked herself the question as she turned her car into a street near Beekman Place. She had driven to the deserted track after dark, but all lights were off when she left, save a pilot globe in the hall. Now the front windows gleamed like a midway—and the outline of a man's head showed through the glass curtains.

Her first impulse was to call the patrol which guarded the neighborhood—but that would take time. She would handle this herself.

Swiftly she went into the old house, noiselessly sped up the stairs. The door of that front room was wide open. Stepping across the threshold, she saw an oldish chap—spats on ankles, cane across knees, boutonniere in the lapel of his dark coat, a monocle dangling from a wide black ribbon.

"Of all the nerve!" Sherry exclaimed. The man glanced up—he had been in deep meditation. He placed monocle in eye, peered at her an instant as he sat forward, then arose, dropping his cane unnoticed. "Well, if it isn't little Sherry. My dear—"

"One minute! Who are you, and how'd you get in?"

"My dear Sherry!" The monocle dropped, and he swung it on his finger a moment. "I persuaded your personal maid—"

"You mean the woman who cleans my place—"

"Ah, yes! She admitted me—after I showed my bag—my passport—same name, y'see—"

"Uncle Willie!"

Arms akimbo, Sherry surveyed the problem child of the Bond family: an impressive mountain of a man, a relative who'd run through every penny he had inherited; who had been sent abroad by her late parents, when they staked him to a new life in the old world—on condition he would never return home.

"So you had to come back to America to roost!"

"My dear! Everything was going fine—you recall, never asked a shilling of your dad after I got established abroad."

"Established in what—as what?"

"I was—er—ah—shall I say confidential—ah—turf adviser—"

"You mean race track tout! Then this is no place for you. I've no money; and plenty of worries without being saddled with you."

"My dear, my dear!" Protesting hands went upward.

"Please sit down." Sherry sank into the depths of an overstuffed sofa as the big fellow resumed his [illegible] "Suppose you brought cash [illegible]"

He frowned. "Well, now, I—ah [illegible] black ribbon. "Fact [illegible]—the war [illegible] the moment, she [illegible] I [illegible]"

"Oh!" Sherry grinned. "It's that [illegible] You came home, broke! And [illegible] money out of me!"

"Sherry! I've—ah—come to the family—"

"I'm the last of the family—and the family can support you no longer in your accustomed style." She gave a short little laugh. "Nor me either, for that matter. The main seam of the Green Diamond Coal Company has run out, and the mine has shut up shop."

William Bond looked at Sherry as if he could not believe his ears. He leaned forward, his keen gaze piercing her through—"You mean you're stony? Absolutely broke?"

Sherry grinned. "Absolutely! I'm flat—"

His [illegible] back his head [illegible] a big smile creased his jowls. "Then, my dear, I've returned just in time! Our family always sticks together. I [illegible] you. Sherry, I do want to offer my services. Read all about you—last of the famous Bonds, opening a one-[illegible] stable, going to recoup family fortunes."

"Bosh! I had a chance to buy a two-year-old from a friend in Maryland. Colt that never started—sick last year. Good blood lines. Nominated him for the Kentucky Derby.

"That's to be worth $75,000 this year!"

"Seller threw in the groom—now he's as bossy and cranky as if he'd been with the family all his life."

"Splendid, my dear! You'll win the Derby — remember Isabel [illegible] $1,200 for [illegible] the Derby [illegible] of other stakes—$127,163 in [illegible]"

"You do know your racing figures!"

His [illegible] as he went on: [illegible] Sherry. Now I [illegible] thought it out, [illegible]"

"Willie Bond, did your last dollar go to the taxi-driver?"

"Well, ah—it was two dollars. He had no change."

"You could have used the cross-town bus for a nickel. But go on—what have you to offer me?"

"Forty years—more or less—on the turf. Know everybody. Know everything, meaning all the angles. [illegible] the nag. I'll act as business [illegible]"

"[illegible]? That means you'll get [illegible] the tracks free. [illegible] [illegible] a horse [illegible]"

"[illegible] put it in your pocket. When [illegible] choice loses, you'll look up the [illegible]"

Sherry gasped. . . . The outline of a man's head showed through the curtains. What was he doing in her house?

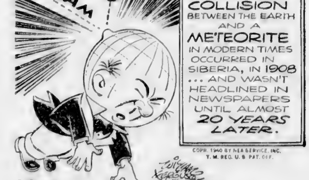

"Really, Sherry!" William Bond was on his feet, keen indignation on his red face. "I never did such a thing in my life! I'm no crook. Forty years experience—at your service—you can trust me, Sherry. Cross my heart, I'm no tout. Be entirely at your service." Sincerity crept into his voice. "You've never started a horse, have you, Sherry?"

The Kick-Back

What of Juniors?

Good For You

AS FORECAST in this column yesterday, the action of the city council in granting a new lease on the Arena without calling for tenders brought fast and indignant protests—much faster in fact than I had expected.

If members of council haven't received these protests by now, I can very easily put them in touch with indignant parties if they would like an earful. In fairness it must be made clear that none of those phoning or calling at The Bulletin sport office in connection with the matter made any objection to the Crockett Brothers, but they certainly did object to the city letting so important a lease as that of the Arena without calling for tenders.

Plenty of heat is developing among the sportsmen who have been working for years and contributing out of their own pockets to keep junior hockey going. The lease was given to the Crocketts on the understanding that they contribute not less than $2,500 toward the senior Flyers.

Council completely forgot the juniors—the division that produced far more revenue for the Arena and city last season than the seniors did. The new lease does nothing at all for the juniors—doesn't even mention them.

Now don't misunderstand me. The Crocketts have done a lot for junior hockey—but the juniors have done plenty for them too. The point I'm making is that council apparently made the lease deal while thinking only of the senior club and took no steps to help the clubs that are giving hundreds of youngsters here a chance to play—Maple Leaf Athletic Club, Edmonton Athletic Club and Canadian-Crusader Athletic Club. These are the clubs that operate midget, juvenile and junior teams and look to scant gate receipts from junior games to foot the bills for all.

While gross receipts were $23,000 last season, little of this reached the clubs for the bulk of it came from playoff games in which the C.A.H.A., Arena and city take everything. To continue doing the splendid work in developing players that they have in the past, these junior organizations must have and are fully entitled to some tangible recognition from the city.

The very least council can do to rectify this situation is to talk the situation over with the junior chiefs before the lease is signed.

It Will Do You Good

IF YOU want to do yourself a lot of good, you should take a trip out to the Arena tonight and see the mass demonstration of physical training work that is being put on by Edmonton and central Alberta groups of the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training project. Several hundred young women and men will present convincing evidence of what a few hours a week of physical training will do for you. Starting time is 8:15 p.m.

If you are a gal with such heart-breaking problems as curves in the wrong places, or one of those gals with angles where curves ought to be, you'll find that the capers shown tonight will give you the sort of figure that stops traffic.

On the other hand, the males will see what the right sort of exercise will do for growing "spare-tires" on tummies or to fill out skeletons into Tarzan-like physiques.

Even more important than the stream-lining is the abundance of pep and vitality that this physical training develops. A few months of this stuff and you're ready for anything from a game of marbles to a spot of fighting.

Tonight's huge demonstration will show the general public what has been achieved in two seasons of work. There are 172 training groups operating in 73 Alberta centres—a really amazing development for only two years of activity. Groups are expected to take part in tonight's display from Red Deer, Ponoka, Wetaskiwin, Waskatenau, Westlock, Wainwright, Lamont, Breton, Fort Saskatchewan, Ryley, Tofield, Vegreville, Lacombe, Patridge Hill and Edmonton.

BROOKLYN MAINTAINS UNBEATEN PACE

SPORTS BULLETIN

Believe It Or Not — By Robt. Ripley

Les Thirlwell's Injury Severe Blow to Calgary

TORONTO, April 24.—A severe blow was struck at the slim hope held by Calgary Stampeders to win the Allan cup when it was announced by hospital authorities Tuesday that Les Thirlwell will not play hockey again this season.

The left winger suffered a severely cut left thigh when Ex-Stampeders absorbed a 9-1 pasting at the hands of Kirkland Lake Blue Devils Monday night, their second straight defeat in the best of five games series for the Canadian Senior championship. The Blue Devils won the first game 8-5.

Forty stitches were required to close the wound, caused by a skate when Thirlwell collided with his teammate, Tommy Dewar in the first period. An artery was severed and heavy thigh muscles were badly lacerated. The young player is in a weakened condition from loss of blood.

Confident they would finish the series tonight, several of the Blue Devils played their first golf of the season Tuesday. The Stampeders, unwilling to be counted out, kept plugging at hockey and staged a one-hour skating and shooting drill.

"There's just no explaining what's happened to the team," said Marty Burke, disappointed coach of the Calgary squad. "No team could go as far as we have, hauling the last two Allan Cup champions (Trail Smoke Eaters and Port Arthur Bear Cats) on the way to the finals and look as bad as we have against Kirkland Lake. There's just a chance the boys will snap out of this slump and make a series of it yet."

NEED PEP NOTES

Around the club's hotel reception room is affixed a message 40 feet long and containing 2,000 names of Calgary supporters, received in Port Arthur the night the Stampeders downed the Bear Cats for the Western title. Gazing at the elongated good wishes, Manager Harry Walshaw thought "maybe if we received another one like that the boys would start to click."

HOCKEY FIGHT NOW BREWING EAST CIRCLES

MONTREAL, April 24.—Forecast of a fight to have the Quebec branch reject the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's ruling that an amateur is "any player not playing organized professional hockey" was made last night at a meeting of the Quebec body.

Albert W. Reid, Sherbrooke district vice-president of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, indicated during the meeting that he intends to lead the opposition with a statement that the C.A.H.A. is "prostituting hockey by making such a ruling."

Reid told members at the gathering, preliminary to the annual meeting of the Quebec branch here this week-end, that the Dominion body has neglected the rights of about 20,000 youngsters playing hockey for the love of the game to cater to a few receiving remuneration.

He charged the Dominion had "railroaded the ruling through at its recent annual meeting giving member branches a chance to air their stand on conditions where amateurs now can receive remuneration for their services without fear of suspension."

Armstrong, Boon Bout Is Taboo

NEW YORK, April 24.—The New York State Athletic Commission today refused to approve a welterweight championship fight between champion Henry Armstrong and Eric Boon, lightweight titleholder of England. Promoter Mike Jacobs had planned to stage the fight outdoors in June.

The commission said Boon would have to prove himself against other opponents in United States before getting a shot at the title.

Wetaskiwin Probes Ball Prospects

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

WETASKIWIN, April 24—Whether or not Wetaskiwin will have a team in the mooted baseball league with Ponoka and Edmonton depends on what support can be mustered in a survey now underway here. Those behind the move for a ball club will meet on Friday night to again consider the situation.

Castilloux Wins Easily Over Ramey

NEW YORK, April 24—Dave Castilloux, Canada's feather and lightweight boxing champion, coasted to an easy eight-round decision over Wesley Ramey of Grand Rapids, Mich., in a bout at the Bronx Coliseum last night before a crowd of 8,000. Castilloux weighed 134½; Ramey 135¼.

JERSEY CITY SETS RECORD ATTENDANCE

JERSEY CITY, N.J., April 24.—Jersey City smashed the minor league attendance record for the fourth straight season Tuesday as its Giants opened their 1940 International Baseball League campaign with an 11-1 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs. Paid attendance was 20,529.

Since Roosevelt field seats only about 25,000, not all of the ticket holders saw the game. The crowd was estimated at more than 40,000 including thousands of standees.

But the ticket sale conducted under the direction of Mayor Frank Hague, amounted to 47,000 paid admissions in advance and enabled the club to set its new mark. Tuesday's opener had been postponed five days because of inclement weather.

Speaker Suggests Wealth Placed At Canada's Disposal

OTTAWA, April 24.—A suggestion that wealthy individuals and institutions place their wealth at disposal of the Dominion government for duration of the war and for five years after the return of peace and without interest, was made last night by Ernest Moulds in his presidential address to the Ottawa St. George's Society 96th annual meeting.

"What right has anyone to amass wealth under the Union Jack and not fight or pay to protect that flag?" asked Moulds, an Ottawa florist. "All must fight or pay."

Lewis Carroll, the author, did all his writing while standing.

Dodgers' Home Runs Rout Boston Bees

BROOKLYN, N.Y. April 24—Brooklyn exploded like a case of dynamite under Boston Bees with three home runs that brought an 8-3 victory and kept the Dodgers undefeated and tied for the National Baseball League lead.

It was an explosive battle from the start, when a double, a single and Max West's homer earned the Bees their total of three runs in the first inning. It was the first time the Dodgers had been scored upon this season. Herman Franks and Charley Gilbert hit homers to lead a five-run second inning.

Patriotic Norway Bus Drivers Kill Selves, Passengers

STOCKHOLM, April 24—Three fiercely patriotic Norwegian bus drivers, impressed to transport German troops, raced their buses over precipices, losing their own lives out killing most of their 180 passengers, a traveller from Norway reported here Tuesday.

The traveller, Reidar Haanes, sports writer for the Norwegian newspaper Aftenbladet, said that despite alert German patrols around captured Oslo, active and passive resistance persisted.

Final Reading Is Given Three Bills In Upper Chamber

QUEBEC, April 24—Final reading was accorded yesterday in the legislative assembly to government bills repealing exemption clauses in succession taxes and a bill suspending ratification by the provincial upper house of a measure granting woman suffrage.

The double repeal kills elimination effected by the former Union Nationale administration for the Quebec government and its contractors from degrees and ordinances of the Collective Labor Agreements' act and the Fair Wage act.

OSHAWA PLANS GOOD JUNIOR, SENIOR TEAM

By HUGH C. CHADDERTON

WINNIPEG, April 24.—Coach Tracy Shaw said Tuesday that Oshawa Generals would try to retain graduates from the 1939-40 dominion junior hockey championship team to form a strong senior club next year.

The executives of the Oshawa club plan to rebuild the junior club as well and they intend to have strong contenders for both the senior and junior crowns next year, Shaw revealed.

The junior generals won their second successive Memorial cup title Monday night, defeating Kenora Thistles 4-2 in the fourth game of the national championships. The eastern representatives won the first two contests but Thistles prolonged the best-of-five series with a victory Saturday.

HOPE TO KEEP 'EM

Shaw said that, although most of the players would attend National League training camps, the club hoped to persuade them to remain in Oshawa and play amateur hockey.

"The executive of the club have made no definite plans as yet but they would like to keep most of the boys together for a crack at the Allan Cup," he continued.

"At the same time, we will retain the nucleus for a good junior team from this year's squad and next year we will be shooting for our third straight junior crown."

The silver-haired mentor, who guided Generals three years ago when they lost out in the dominion finals as well as in their title-winning years of 1939 and 1940, said he did not know which club he would coach.

"Either of them would suit me as both the juniors and the boys that are over-age have been wonderful lads to work with," he said.

In 1937, Generals were defeated by St. Boniface Seals and last year they won their first Memorial cup crown to the dominion finals against Edmonton Athletic Club.

PLAYERS TOO OLD

The players who will be too old for junior next year are Goalkeeper Ken Mosdell, McMillan, defence George Ritchie and Don Daniels, and forwards Jim McAtee, Ron Wilson, Roy Sawyer, Nick Knott and Orville Smith.

Members of this year's squad still eligible for junior ranks are Defenceman Frank Eddolls and forwards Norm McAtee, Wally Wilson, Bob Hollyer and Jack Hewson. Norm McAtee and Wally Wilson are brothers of Jud McAtee and Ron Wilson of the graduating class.

Generals left last night for Regina where they play Abbott-General's in an exhibition game Wednesday night.

Quebec City Sales Tax Gets Approval

QUEBEC, April 24—Imposition by Quebec City of a sales tax not exceeding two per cent was approved yesterday by the legislative assembly's private bills committee. The committee voted 23-7 in favor of the principle of the levy but suspended a provision extending the tax to municipalities within a 25-mile radius of Quebec.

BENGALS NEED SHARE OF LUCK PENNANT RACE

CHICAGO, April 24.—A fair share of luck, manager Del Baker believes, may turn the Detroit Tiger jig-saw puzzle into a compelling baseball picture this season.

The Detroit American League club has more "ifs" right now than a tiger has stripes and no one knows this better than Baker.

"The pieces of any Joe Blobe as to where we'll finish this season is just as good as your's or mine," said Baker Tuesday.

"But I will say that if we get a fair share of the game's breaks we'll give every team trouble. Analyzing our club, I'm not worried about how we'll hit, the kind of catching we'll get nor how Hank Greenberg and the rest of our outfield will go. I'm satisfied Greenberg will become a fine outfielder—play just as well if not better than he did at first base."

Baker scribbled the names of Rudy York, Charley Gehringer, Dick Bartell and Frank Higgins, who make up his infield.

"York will improve defensively at first base," Baker continued, "and he'll hit. Gehringer may surprise everybody with an excellent year. Bartell's been going great. Higgins has had trouble, but he's a good ball player and will come around."

Ducks Unlimited Wins Annual Award

NEW YORK, April 24—Following a poll of fish and game writers of United States newspapers, the Rod and Gun Editors Association of metropolitan New York last night presented its annual award for the outstanding accomplishment in game restoration during the previous year to Ducks Unlimited, Inc.

Jim Hurley, president of the writers' association, made the presentation to E. Herrick Low, secretary of the national organization of Wildflower, at a dinner attended by more than 200 sportsmen and state game officials. Ducks Unlimited was selected to receive the award because of its establishment of 500,000 acres of wild duck breeding refuges in western Canada.

Lithium, potassium, and sodium the three lightest known metals, will float on water.

Year's Absence Still Required For Reinstatement

TORONTO, April 24.—One year's absence from organized hockey is still required of the player seeking reinstatement from professional ranks, W. A. Hewitt, secretary-registrar of the Canadian Amateur Hockey association, explained Tuesday.

When the C.A.H.A. set up a broader definition of an amateur at its recent annual meeting in Montreal there was no change in the stipulation that a man seeking to return to amateur company must wait for at least a year before his case is considered.

Bauer Honored Banquet Guest

KITCHENER, Ont., April 24—Bobby Bauer, clever right winger of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, will be presented with the Lady Byng trophy at the first annual banquet of the Kitchener-Waterloo boys hockey association here Thursday night.

Formal presentation of the trophy, awarded annually to the N.H.L. player voted "most gentlemanly" in his conduct on the ice during the season, will be made in Boston prior to opening of the 1940-41 season. Frank Calder, N.H.L. president and Manager Art Ross of the Bruins have consented to the preliminary presentation here.

Weight Lifting Meet Is Set Back

According to information just received, the western Canada and international weight-lifting championships originally slated for May 4th in Vancouver, have been set on one week to May 11th.

It is not known if Alberta will be represented, although there are several men in Edmonton who would make an excellent showing. Strong men from United States points on the west coast will be well represented according to the promoters. The event will be staged in the Pro-Rec Athletic Club at 604 West Pender Street, Vancouver.

Entries go to Ian Eisenhardt, 604 Hall Building, Vancouver, B.C.

MAP PREPARED FOR HIGHWAYS IN PROVINCE

Containing more information and more complete data than any of its predecessors, the 1940 Alberta highways map was issued Wednesday by Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works. About 20,000 copies of the map have been printed and are available for distribution.

The map is in colors and contains the provincial highways and gives a table of distances between all principal points of the province. Cities and towns are listed alphabetically. Pictures of well known Alberta tourist resorts are shown. There is a brief description of principal historical sites of the province. The Dominion national parks are included as well as all highway junctions between this city and the United States. The Big Bend highway also is shown. These and many other features make this new map the best so far issued by the department, according to officials.

APRIL HANDS OUT ALL VARIETIES OF FUNNY WEATHER

A change is supposed to be as good as a real, so just imagine how "rested" citizens should feel after all the weather changes they have been able to "enjoy" this month. April has offered every possible kind of weather. There has been snow, rain, cold days and warm days. In fact, residents have been able to do just about everything except keep their feet dry this month.

Wednesday found Old Man Weather back on the scene, although a month has passed since he "officially" abdicated his throne in favor of spring. Snow began to fall about midnight Tuesday and continued until well after 9 a.m. Wednesday. At 8:30 a.m. Wednesday the mercury was standing at 33 above and the barometric reading was 27.38 and decreasing. High temperature Tuesday was 41 above and the low 35 above.

A flock of about 20 geese failed to be dismayed by the wintry aspect of Northern Alberta Wednesday morning as they flew steadily northward, passing right over the central section of the city about 9:15 a.m. Many residents heard them "honking" quite plainly.

Snow and rain was reported from High Prairie, Grouard, Slave Lake, Mirror Landing and Athabasca.

Canon G. G. Reynolds will officiate Thursday at 2:30 p.m. at the funeral services for George Walter Royce, 57, of 9858 62 avenue, whose death occurred Tuesday. The service will be held from Holinstock's funeral parlors. Interment will be made in the soldiers' plot in the Edmonton cemetery. Mr. Royce is survived by three sons, George, Ronald and Rodney, and two daughters, Mrs. W. C. McMurray, Mrs. A. Dinch, Mrs. W. Pollack, Elvina and Eleanor, and four grandchildren, all of Edmonton.

S. A. OFFICER WILL INSPECT WORK IN CITY

Lt.-Col. James Merritt To Address Mass Meeting At Citadel

Lt. Col. James Merrill, in charge of all men's social service activities for the Salvation Army in Canada with headquarters in Toronto, will arrive in the city Thursday to conduct an inspection of social service work here.

He will speak at a mass meeting in the Salvation Army citadel, 102 street, at 8 p.m. Thursday and will leave for Calgary Friday night.

Col. Merritt has been with the Army for 34 years, having received previous training at the International Training College in London, England. He saw service in England for several years and in 1910 was transferred to Canada.

His appointments on arrival in Canada were in connection with the field work of the organization and comprised such corps as Edmonton, Victoria, Calgary and Vancouver. He was then transferred to divisional work and commanded divisions in Manitoba, Alberta, British Columbia and Saskatchewan, later on taking the important position of provincial secretary for the mid-west province with headquarters at Winnipeg.

The colonel is now in charge of all men's social service activities for the Salvation Army in Canada and from his headquarters in Toronto directs this work. He has very definite views on social service and reform.

CLOSE CONTACT

His position as head of the Army's prison work puts him in close contact with the man who has fallen on evil times.

The colonel is visiting here in the interests of the local work and while here he will also inspect the men's social institutions. Since the war he has taken an active part in the campaign for troops and is a member of the war board, directing all Salvation Army efforts for the Canadian forces.

M.H.O. REPORTS THIRD FATALITY IN DIPHTHERIA

Third death from diphtheria in Edmonton during 1940 was reported Wednesday by the city medical health officer, Dr. G. M. Little, to city commissioners.

Since the new year eight cases of the disease have been reported, three of the cases resulting in deaths. In all cases reported the sufferers had not taken inoculation precautions.

The latest victim of the disease is a seven-year-old girl who came to the city recently.

Dr. Little stated Wednesday that the last of a number of inoculations of Edmonton's school children against diphtheria is now being conducted in city schools.

FOUR SHIFTS ARE WORKING CITY FLOODS

Four shifts are working night and day pumping out and cleaning basements and fixing sidewalks in the Alberta avenue flooded area, it was announced by the city engineer's department Wednesday.

Although work is being rushed as fast as possible and 25 men are continuously employed on the job, it will be several days yet before all the families are able to return to their homes will be able to take possession of them again.

In the meantime they are being taken care of in the homes of neighbors or friends.

Run-off waters from the Turnip lake territory has been drained steadily since Sunday, and is now just a trickle, engineer's department officials stated Wednesday. No further flood conditions are anticipated.

Danger of recurrence of the flood conditions in the north-central section of the city as a result of the recent rains and melting of snow is negligible, according to city engineering officials. Run-off waters from Turnip Lake has been drained through city sewers, and any slight increase in the flow from the lake can be handled safely.

Snow and mud hampered workmen in their clean-up operations Wednesday. Motor-driven pumps were in action in the flood district but it is expected that it will be at least 10 days before normal conditions have been restored.

As soon as clean-up work has been completed health department officials will go through the area chlorinating wells, which may have become contaminated from dirty flood water. The department issues orders that well-users consult the department before well water is consumed.

Roads affected by the floods were barricaded against traffic Wednesday. All sidewalks have been removed, but water still lies in low-lying areas in the district.

Arrested Tuesday night by Constables Hicks, of the city police, four men appeared in city police court Wednesday to answer charges of drunkenness and attempting to break into the Alberta hotel. The case was set over until April 30. Hicks told police officials that he found two of the men on the hotel fire escape and two others on a roof about the hotel early Wednesday morning.

Council of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce met Wednesday at the Corona hotel for the consideration of routine business.

Ice Left Piled High In Wake Of Jam

When ice jammed at Peers ferry on the McLeod river, near Edson, vast, grinding ice floes boomed the banks and swept over the flats. The cakes were deposited high on the land when the jam broke, allowing the back-up water to recede. A caterpillar tractor and road grader are seen here trying to clear a passage to the ferry landing.

EXERCISES IN CITY SCHOOLS M'KEE REPORTS

Patriotic exercises are being carried out in Edmonton public and high schools by the students, according to a report submitted by Superintendent of Schools G. A. McKee at a meeting of the Edmonton public school board in the Civic Block Tuesday.

Mr. McKee stated that the saluting of the flag and recitation of the pledge of loyalty was being carried out satisfactorily in the single-teacher elementary classes and that the exercises were being held each morning in the majority of the individual classrooms as a part of the opening exercises. He also reported that in some schools the exercises are performed once a week under the direction of the principal with the whole school assembled.

The superintendent's report indicated that teachers in intermediate and high schools found that the older students preferred to assemble in a body, face the flag and sing "O Canada" or the National Anthem as done in service clubs. The plan has been tried in a few cases, the superintendent that this procedure be adopted in the higher grades.

ADJUSTMENTS IN WAGES STUDIED AT CONFERENCE

City commissioners, representatives of civic unions and Fred Harrison, Vancouver, western representative for the Federal Department of Labor, Wednesday morning discussed wage adjustments and reclassification of certain civic employees in a conference held in the mayor's office. The conference is continuing.

Negotiations on the wage claims and working conditions deadlocked some time ago in discussions between civic officials and union leaders, and it was decided to submit the dispute to the Dominion Department of Labor. The present conference is the outcome of that decision.

In a survey made by A. W. Haddow, city engineer, and W. R. Mount, superintendent of the water works department, of wage schedules in Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon and Calgary, it was found that the Edmonton rates for similar services compared very favorably.

MODEL AIRCRAFT CONTEST STAGED HERE WEDNESDAY

Officials in charge of the third annual model aircraft exhibition and contest held under the sponsorship of the Canadian Legion and the Edmonton Model Aircraft Association, have 75 planes on display when the doors of the exhibition swung open to the public at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Memorial hall.

Every type of plane from a sleek model with a 10-foot wingspread and a gasoline motor, to little, solid models that measure a bare six inches from tip to tip were on display, showing every phase of the model builder's skill.

A flying contest for certain models was held during the afternoon. This year's exhibit was even better than last year's in spite of the fact that last year's contest attracted only some out-of-town model-builders to compete.

Young Officers Of R.C.N.V.R. Train In Great Britain

SOMEWHERE ON THE SOUTH-COAST, April 24.—A party of young officers of the Royal Canadian Naval volunteer reserve has begun training at the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve. They will remain with the Royal Navy for the duration of the war.

Batches of young men from Canada will be following for similar training if the Dominion provides pay and allowances.

Members of the Canadian club will be addressed Thursday noon at the Macdonald by Count Serge Fleury, press attache to the French foreign office, who will speak on the war and the part being taken by the Allied forces.

ICE MOVES OUT ROSEVEAR FLAT AS JAM BREAKS

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

EDSON, April 24—Ice floes, jammed 30 feet thick and nearly 3 miles long in the McLeod river at Roseyear Flats, northwest of Rosevear, moved out Tuesday night after unsuccessful efforts Saturday and Sunday to dynamite the huge mass.

Most seriously affected by the rampaging river were Joe Brons and his wife, who were forced to vacate their home at the height of the flood. Several families had to use boats when the river took to a new channel around the obstruction.

Receding waters left a bridge isolated by erosion, and farmers reported loss of some foxes and a cow and a calf and some poultry.

As the flood subsided after clearing of the ice jam, the river resumed its former course, and residents are now surveying the damage. Rosevear ferry is expected to start operating shortly.

RECOUNT ASKED ACADIA RIDING LIBERALS SAY

Application is being made immediately for a recount order for a recount of ballots in the Acadia Dominion constituency, it was announced Wednesday by leading Liberals in the city Wednesday.

It is expected an application for recount will be made before a supreme court judge at Calgary either Wednesday or Thursday.

In the original tabulation of the election results from deputy returning officers' figures, Dr. A. M. Day, Liberal, was declared elected and Capt. Victor W. Quelch, M.C., New Democracy candidate who held the seat in the last parliament, by 27 votes.

BET ON LOVE

By Charles B. Parmer

"No. But what of it? I saddle my first entry tomorrow."

He glanced at her. "My child! There are 10,000 angles in racing; I know every one. You know none."

"Oh, bosh! Common sense plus a good groom is all you need."

"Really?" He screwed monocle in eye, surveyed her an instant. "You're a beauty, Sherry. About 20, eh?"

"You may save your compliments, Uncle Willie, but your memory is excellent."

Sherry broke off to answer the ringing of the phone in the next room.

"Sherry?" Instantly the girl was on guard. "Paul Wharton. Listen, darling—"

"Cut the darling stuff—What's on your mind, Paul?"

"You've entered Pepper Boy in two races—scratching one, of course. You're not afraid of facing Red Soldier—"

"The idea! Your colt's no champion!"

"You'll see tomorrow. But look here, Sherry, just a word of advice: you can't afford to face your one horse in a claiming race. You belong among the stake-owners."

"Who said I was starting Pepper Boy in a claiming race? It I do, it's my business. Paul, what are you up to?"

"Not a thing! But you're new to racing—need advice—"

"Thanks—don't need yours." On the spur of the instant she said: "Ever hear of my uncle, William Bond? Well, he's very well known in turf circles—on the Continent—just returned—the war, you know. And he's going to act as my business agent. If you've any advice, you might pass it along to him, Jad, get you tomorrow."

Sherry put down the receiver, stepped back into the living room. "Well, I'm sorry, Uncle," with a shrug of her shoulders. "You heard me, didn't you? Giving you a job and a go at the owners—"

A broad and a winning smile crossed his huge cheeks. No wonder people trusted him; he had the ingratiating manner of a diplomat seeking an island or two.

"Must you be told me the truth I bragged about you to Paul—"

"Who and what is Paul?"

"Friend—Paul Wharton. Wants to marry me when I get my fill of horse racing. Grand chap, but too bossy."

"Ah—no doubt a worthy chap."

"Come off that high horse, Willie!" She shrugged, added, "Guess I'll have to take you to bed tonight, but you can't sleep here. I'll give you a dollar, and you can find a room across town." The golden head nodded with energy. "But first, I'll tell you about your one horse. You'll be at the track tomorrow before 10 o'clock, scratch Pepper Boy out of the Handicap."

Ten minutes later Uncle Willie Bond puffed down the stairs with his portmanteau. Outside the door he fiddled an impulse to wave for a passing cab. Sherry said the cross-town bus ran on the next street; and—comforting idea—might by chance look out of her window. This $20 she had given him really was an advance—yet she acted as if it were a loan to a poor relative. Best to humor her for the moment. Again he picked up his bag—the blasted thing would bump his leg—and started toward the corner.

Uncle Willie had just commenced—needed his firm hand to guide her in racing. Putting a Derby colt with a poor man's handicap—claiming race. For inferior horses. No one but a drunken idiot, or, or a girl, would "air a valuable horse in public." Yet he'd taken Pepper Boy for $2,500 she could name the weight her colt carried—without looking at the race. But any qualified horseman then could claim her colt by paying the claiming price.

Pepper Boy should win—racing column of the afternoon paper said his workouts had been fast. Nice little wager on the nose, to win. No, better play safe and bet that he'd run second—that might help out the financial stringency. But suppose the colt was claimed?

Uncle Willie entered Pepper Boy. He—Willie Bond deceased his bag at the thought—he'd be out of a job. Sherry had only this one horse. She had better do some tall thinking. He'd—a cab slithered to the curb. A voice called from the gloom of the driver's seat.

"Hop in, Pop. That bag looks heavy—won't eat more'n half a meal a mile."

"Eh! Ah—yes. But never mind the Pop' stuff, m'lad."

(To Be Continued)

35 TO APPEAR FOR HEARING TOBACCO CASE

Companies Will Answer Alleged Combine Charges Here Next Monday

Thirty-five defendants—manufacturers, wholesalers and jobbers—will appear in supreme court Monday before Mr. Justice A. A. McGillivray and a jury to answer alleged "tobacco combine" charges.

It is anticipated that the hearing of evidence in those charges will occupy the court for at least two months, according to estimates of counsel engaged on the case.

300 SUMMONED

A jury panel of 300 has been summoned for the trial, and it is expected that the selection of the jury will occupy the court for days at least.

This is the largest jury panel ever called in Alberta's legal history, but is far short of a Dominion record, as more than 1,000 jurors were summoned in the famous "fruit combine" charges, trial of which was held in the British Columbia courts.

3,000 EXHIBITS

At the preliminary hearing more than 3,000 exhibits were put in by the Crown to substantiate the combine charges. These have been bound, and together with the typed script of the evidence are now contained in 12 volumes of record of the preliminary hearing.

Special seating arrangements are being made at the court house to accommodate the jury and barristers engaged on the case.

ASSAULT COUNT LAID AGAINST MAN WEDNESDAY

Police reported Wednesday that early this morning Constables Alex Keating and H. Lyttle arrested a man named Percy Sennett in the Acme Rooms on 102 avenue on a charge of assault causing actual bodily harm.

The constables reported that on responding to a complaint from the rooming house they found another roomer, George Garrett, with his face bruised and cut so badly that it was necessary to send him to the Royal Alexandra hospital for treatment. Garrett told police that Sennett had attacked him, hitting him over the face and head with a milk bottle. Garrett handed police a broken, blood-stained bottle.

Sennett told police that he hit Garrett with his fist after the landlady had told him to go to Garrett's room and tell him to be quiet. Police said Sennett's left hand seemed to be broken.

100 SOLDIERS VISIT CITY ON BRIEF LEAVE

Edmonton Men Home From Calgary Pending Movement

Packing up their troubles in their old kit bags, 100 Edmonton soldiers who have been completing their training at Calgary prior to "standing to" for proceeding "somewhere" under orders, arrived here Tuesday to spend a brief leave.

The men, who will reinforce the Edmonton Regiment, arrived on the regular train from Calgary.

In high spirits, the boys had a right good time on the train. Obviously glad to visit their old home town and to see friends and relatives before embarking on the next stage of the "great adventure", the boys whiled away the time from Calgary in merry song, impromptu wrestling matches and other forms of diversion.

Lieut.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., area commandant, stated Wednesday that on May 1, Major General J. H. Ashton, Inspector-General of the Canadian Active Service Forces, will be a city visitor and would inspect the three artillery and one field hygiene section in garrison here. Also he would inspect the hutments and garrison equipment.

Col. Brown also announced that the 91st Field Battery had been moved from quarters in the Fane building to huts in the garrison proper. In addition to this battery two other units are in huts, the 23rd Anti-Tank Battery and the 91st Field Battery.

History of Jasper National park will be presented at a meeting of the Northern Alberta Fish and Game League in the Corona hotel Friday at 8 p.m. The speaker will be T. C. Young of Jasper.
